Copywriting Checklist

First Page Purpose: Does the first page give your prospect a compelling reason-- in 5 seconds or less -- why he/she should stay and read on?

☐ Note: Did you make sure that the logo, company name, header, graphics and other non-selling features do not take up a sizeable chunk of the first page?

Headline:

Does the headline stop the reader dead in his tracks? Does the headline read like an interesting editorial - instead of an ad? Does the headline incorporate a compelling promise, or point to a benefit that's important to the target audience? Does the headline call out to the target audience?

Does the headline cause the reader to read the sub-headline and/or the first paragraph of the web copy? Is this the best possible headline for the objective? Is this the best possible headline for the target audience? Is this the best possible headline for the product or service?

Does the headline do 1 or more of the following:

- . Appeal to the emotions?
- . Use specifics?
- . Arouse curiosity?
- . Make an announcement?
- . Ask a question?
- . Begin with the words "how to"?
- . First Paragraph: Does the first paragraph cause the reader to read the second paragraph? Does the opening paragraph ask a compelling question that breaks preoccupation, grabs attention, and points to the result or benefit of the product or service?
- . Formatting: Is the copy written in a conversational style? Does it use contractions, colloquialisms, and easy-to-read language instead of corporate speak? Is it scannable? Does it do the following?

☐ Highlight (i.e., bold, italicize, underline) selected keywords to help scanners move through the copy?

Use bulleted lists to summarize content?

Have meaningful subheads (vs. amusing or clever ones)?

Present one idea per paragraph?

Use the “inverted pyramid” style of writing -- that is, key points and conclusions presented first, followed by less important matters and background material?

Are the paragraphs broken down to 2-4 sentences?

Incorporate interesting stories or case studies, significant facts, quotes or statistics set off in boxes?

Body Copy:

Is the body copy written in editorial (versus advertising) style?

Does the body copy lead the reader down the intended sales path?

Was emotion injected into the body copy?

Is the body copy built upon proven emotional drivers such as anger, exclusivity, fear, greed, guilt, curiosity, etc.?

Do all the parts of the body copy compel the reader to read from start to finish?

Did you employ the questions: “What’s in it for me?” and “Who cares?” and “So what?” after writing each sentence -- and remove all sentences or phrases that don’t satisfy those questions?

Does the body copy employ the linear path -- with minimal distractions and minimal clickable links that don’t support the sales process?

Does it use psychological devices that motivate the prospect to buy?

Have all the rational words been replaced with emotional words wherever possible?

Does the body copy answer the question, “Will this product really work for me if I use it?” with an unequivocal “Yes!” – and were all possible sales objections addressed?

Is the writer of the information identified early in the body copy? Are reasons given as to why the reader should believe the writer? Does the web copy convince the reader that no other product or service can compare to the one that’s being sold?

Offer, Testimonials, Bullets, Price, Guarantee, Bonuses, and Close:

Is the offer crafted in an irresistible manner?

Does it establish a Unique Selling Proposition -- and is that USP featured prominently on the web page?

Does the copy employ the use of testimonials?

Are the testimonials strategically placed in areas where they reinforce the selling arguments?

Does the copy employ mouth-watering bullets?

Do the bullets first state the benefit that the reader will receive, followed up with either:

- . 1) a brief scenario of how their life will change when they get that benefit;
- . 2) an injection of emotion, drama or intrigue that elevates the desirability of that benefit?

Are free bonuses or gifts offered as an incentive to buy?

Does the close summarize the offer, employ a persuasive call to action, and inject a sense of urgency by giving compelling reason/s to act now?

Is the close written in a style that assumes the sale? Does the copy convince the reader that the product or service is worth the price?

Does the product or service being offered have a guarantee that removes the risk from the purchase?

Other Elements:

Is there a mechanism to capture the prospects contact information? (especially important online)

Does the website opt-in offer feature an irresistible – and easy – way to compel the target audience to give up their contact information?

Does the design layout and graphics support the copy?

Does the order form include the following proven components?

- . Check box
- . Summary of offer, bonuses and guarantee
- . Price
- . Assurance of secure ordering
- . How the product or service will be delivered – and when
- . Testimonial as reinforcement of purchase

SWIPE LETTERS

MARKETING TEMPLATES AND IDEAS YOU CAN USE

Winter Festival Program (you can use this in any of the cold months – January/February/March etc. depending on your location)

Idea: Have your website decorated (much like Google does) with a winter theme. Or, if in a retail environment, have windows painted, or snowflakes pasted on windows, or have skis hanging in front window, or ice skates, etc. Your staff (again – if retail or restaurant) wearing winter clothing. Serve hot drinks. Offer snowman building contests, or have wooden cutouts of you with a snowman – offer free photos to be taken and mailed to them.

Themes to consider using: Hot Bonuses on a Cold Day, It's Snowing Special Prizes, Winter Wonderland of Savings, Meltdown to Spring Program, Ski Jump your Success this year, off Snow Day specials that give extra bonuses or incentives whenever it snows.

Consider using a cover letter much like this:

Dear Mother Nature,
Somewhere where it's hot blvd

From: Your name

THIS IS NO LONGER FUNNY!! We surrender – ENOUGH already. Please be advised that we no longer appreciate your sense of humor with our weather. Your funniest one yet – giving us 2 feet of snow on a recent Monday morning. Real funny. I loved driving to work that day, sitting in traffic for 3 hours, shoveling enough snow to make an igloo, and hurting my back in the process.

Due to your recent attitude towards us, we will be making your special prize available to another more deserving Mother (or Father). We know there are a lot of VERY deserving mothers and father out there, ones that really do appreciate us and enjoy seeing us happy (not buried in snow).

Also, we have canceled you order you recently placed with us for a _____, and would like to advise you that until you change your current weather attitude towards us, we will be unable to accommodate you any further. It is regrettable that such a letter was necessary, but again, we repeat – NOT FUNNY, AT ALL.

Best regards, (I hope you have a blizzard at your house today)

<name>
Business

And then use this as the next page:

Headline: Mother Nature's Loss is Your Gain...

Mother nature has been unnecessarily cruel to us this winter – and I want you to benefit from her nasty attitude.

As you saw on the previous letter, we are not impressed with her... but we are impressed with you.

In fact, as one of our best customers, we want to offer you a special Meltdown to Spring

Program. During the month of February (or March) we are offering you a free membership into our Gold Star Program, exclusively for our best customers. When you become a member of our Gold Star Program, you get the following benefits:

- 1) Regular special offers and discounts – minimum of 10% off future purchases
- 2) Our monthly Gold Star Newsletter mailed directly to your home or office
- 3) Private members only parties – 3 times a year we will host a special party just for you. Come and meet new friends, get free food and drinks, be entertained by our fabulous _____ (band, magician, hypnotist, etc). And, for Gold Members only, there is a private viewing room that showcases our brand new products – you get them at special prices that are not available to anyone else
- 4) Hanging out with celebrities! Each party will bring in celebrities for you to mingle with, have your photo taken with, or even get their signatures. (some of the celebrities we have booked for the next 3 meetings are _____)
- 5) Birthday clubs. On your birthday, not only will we buy you lunch at our favorite restaurant, _____, we will also offer you a special deal only available to you on your birthday.

All you need to do to become part of the Gold Star Program is to _____. Try it out for the first year for free, and let us know your thoughts.

Mother nature does NOT get this program – nor will she be allowed to until she changes her current attitude towards us.

I hope this helps you warm up a little on a frosty day.

Here's to spring!!!

January – National Thank Your Customer's Month

Idea: According to the Direct Marketing Association, the #1 reason people stop buying from you is that they feel ignored or unappreciated. 83% of people who switched suppliers did so because they felt taken advantage of. The easy solution? SAY THANK YOU!

- 1) A personalized thank you card or postcard for every new client. Handwritten is even better (www.ThinkInkMarketing.com does hand addressing of envelopes, tear sheet mailings and personalized post it notes.)
- 2) Thank your clients anytime they give you feedback on your products, your services, or your customer service. If the feedback is negative - be thankful that they are helping you fix a problem in your business. If the feedback is positive - be thankful they took the time to let you know.
- 3) A thank you for repeat business. Send a thank you card or postcard to those who order any products or services you recommend. "Thank you for your trust in me" is all you have to say.
- 4) When customers refer you to their friends, family or associates. It takes a lot of trust in you for them to send over their personal contacts. And it is the best form of advertising you will ever get. You may even send them a small gift with your thank you card.
- 5) When they defect to the competition. As mentioned earlier, 83% of them will leave because they think you don't care. So, if it is too late and they have moved on - make sure you show them you DO care, and that you would do anything to get them back. Create some internal systems that notify's you when a certain amount of time has gone by and a customer hasn't bought. This flag that goes up when they haven't been buying on a regular basis will prompt you to stay in touch and hopefully win them back.
- 6) When they say no. One of the best things you can do when a potential customer says no to your proposal or sales pitch is to say thank you. Telling them you do care and still want their business in the future is a sure fire way to show them you are serious. Put them on your mailing list and make sure they stay up to date with your business. Newsletters are an exceptional way to keep them in your funnel and up to date with the success your existing clients are experiencing.
- 7) Send them a thank you note whenever they do say something that makes you smile. Send them something back that makes their day as well.

It truly doesn't take much to stand out to your customers. Saying thank you is a proven way to make sure they know you care. And a customer that knows you care, will remain a loyal buyer. The amount of time it takes is miniscule compared to the results you will see in return.

January 1th – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Bonza Bottler Day is an excuse to celebrate each month and happens when the day and date are the same (e.g. January 1 (01/01), February 2 (02/02), March 3 (03/03) etc. When the year also coincides with the number of the day and month (October 10, 2010) – this is even a bigger celebration known as Bodacious Bonza Bottler Day.

This day was created by Elaine Fremont in 1985 when she realized there were no repeat special occasions to celebrate once a month. She decided to give herself a reason to have a party and some fun each other. The proper way to celebrate these days are with a party – but if that is not possible – a person should at least wish other people a “Happy Bonza Bottler Day”.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special. For example:

For your first Bonza Bottler promotion, you might want to explain a bit of the story to your clients. Simply tell them that you want to celebrate something every month and couldn’t figure out a better way to do it than celebrating Bonza Bottler days.

January Examples:

“Good Resolutions are like babies crying in church. They should be carried out immediately”- Charles M. Sheldon

“The gardening season officially begins on January 1 and ends on Dec 31” – Marie Huston

“To read a poem in January is as lovely as to go for a walk in June” – Jean-Paul Sartre

Ring Out The Old, Ring In The New,
Ring Happy Bells, Across the Snow;
The Year is Going, Let Him Go;
Ring Out The False, Ring in the True”
- Lord Tennyson Alfred

January 8th – Show and Tell At Work Day

Idea: Don’t be afraid to ask your most satisfied customers to tell their colleagues, friends and/or family about your business. Create some exclusive service or benefits that they can “show and tell” to their friends. Create a friends and family email newsletter list that goes out to your best clients and offering sales and promotions before anyone else gets them. Make sure you create a link that allows them to forward your message to their friend or a website link that they can send offering the special offer. Soon, your special email list will grow as their friends will want in also.

January 9th – National Clean Off Your Desk Day

Idea: It’s the New Year and perfect time to start tackling messy desktops. Desktop management is critically important to everyone’s well-being as it makes it extremely difficult to concentrate on particular tasks when your desk is bombarded with piles of paper.

Let your clients know that you care about their physical, mental and psychosocial well-being. Tell them that you want to simplify their life and their office and find peace and comfort in their surroundings.

Grabber: a garbage bag to help them declutter, file folders (even logo these with your business information)

January 10th – “Where’s The Beef” Day

Idea: In 1984, Wendy’s Burger Chain aired it’s “Where’s The Beef” ad campaign today. It is now a catch phrase since used for the all-purpose phrase of questioning the substance of an idea, event or product.

The ad known as the “Fluffy Bun” featured three elderly ladies examining an exaggeratedly large hamburger bun topped with a tiny hamburger patty – the ladies amused each other with comments such as “it certainly is a big bun” and “it’s a big fluffy bun”. The main actress (Clara Peller) finally interrupts with an outraged voice “Where’s The Beef”. The phrase has been used in Presidential campaigns, numerous TV shows etc.; even though the advertising campaign ended in 1985 – “Where’s The Beef” lives on.

Which leads to “Where’s Your Beef” – do you have a campaign slogan? A slogan is a very important element for branding as it makes it easier to increase a consumer’s retention rate and desire. Don’t be confusing about your slogan – make it concise and precise. A slogan that takes up a whole sentence to convey your brand is less effective than a slogan with 3 or 4 words. The less words, the easier for people to remember.

According to AdAge.com, here are the top 10 slogans of the century:

1. Diamonds are forever (DeBeers)
2. Just do it (Nike)
3. The pause that refreshes (Coca-Cola)
4. Tastes great, less filling (Miller Lite)
5. We try harder (Avis)
6. Good to the last drop (Maxwell House)
7. Breakfast of champions (Wheaties)
8. Does she ... or doesn't she? (Clairol)
9. When it rains it pours (Morton Salt)
10. Where's the beef? (Wendy's)

January 14th - NBC's "Today" show premiered (1952)

On December 24, 2008, Jay Leno informed his viewers about his plan to host a 10 p.m. program every weeknight on the network, he joked that it would start "right after the last hour of the 'Today' show. The joke had some truth to it though, the 'Today' show (now expanding to four hours each weekday) held an hour primetime show in the evening for a holiday special called "Today Looks Back". The show counted down the year's top news stories, fascinating people etc. The special was an unusual way for NBC to fill in its holiday air time.

Idea: What can you re-package from 2013?

Take a look at your top selling products from the past year and put together a limited time re-bundled product for your clients. State the facts on why it was your most popular product of 2013 and the benefits and/or testimonials from your clients.

January 15th - "Happy Days" begins an 11 year run on ABC (1974)

Idea: Happy Days was one of the most successful series of the 1970's but when it ended – it became famous for another reason. Happy Days coined a new phrase called "jumping the shark". It now refers to a tipping point when a show's writers have run out of ideas. The last Happy Days episode, in which Fonzie literally jumps over a shark on water skis, signaled the creative collapse of the writers.

Are your clients out of ideas? Can you spark them with some new ideas to get their business going? Send them a list of things you can do for them to help get their business out of a rut. Let them know that you don't want to see them "jumping the shark".

Grabber: swimming goggles, a plastic shark toy, or a happy face sticker

January 21st – National Hugging Day

The most successful butcher doesn't sell meat!

Think about the butcher business – price is typically how they advertise and compete. Yet, most people will pay a little more if given a good reason to. If you are hosting a special dinner party – the price of the meat is not your main concern – it is what the end result of the meal is. If your guests rave about it being the best they have ever had – then you are happy. And are willing to pay a premium to guarantee the meal is the best they ever had.

A success story about a butcher.

10 years ago Lori Prokop scraped together her savings to attend a seminar being put on by Ted Nicholas (a direct marketing master and copywriting genius). She got his attention during the break and told him the story. Her and her husband had been struggling with the butcher shop (and almost to the point of closing the doors), as the entire parking lot was ripped up and unusable for 6 months – totally destroying their customer flow.

So how could she get more customers in?

Ted started asking some questions and found out that her husband was quite a tall man, and he love to hug people as well.

Ted gave her the one single piece of advice that turned their lives around almost immediately.

He said "when you get back home – first thing I want you to do is call your butcher shop "The Hugging Butcher" – advertise it everywhere, new signs and all over your marketing. Use direct response style marketing and make that husband of yours the hugging butcher and have him stand at the front door and hug everyone that walks through – men, women and children."

She followed Ted's advice to a T. Quicker than she ever could have dreamed – business was booming! People couldn't wait to visit the hugging butcher – business went through the roof (parking lot or not). Soon, they were able to raise the price and commanded the highest price in the market they served – and clients lined up at the door. After a few years they sold that business for a very large sum of money – amazing what a simple differentiator can do for a business!

Now she runs a multi-million dollar consulting business – teaching similar techniques to those that Ted teaches.

January 27th – Thomas Crapper Day

Idea: Thomas Crapper was said to invent the flushing toilet. However, it is still in debate whether he did or not.

He was definitely a plumber and operated two of the three Crapper plumbing shops in his life. Crapper does hold nine patents, four for improvements to drains, three for water closets and one for manhole covers and the last for pipe joints.

While Crapper may or not be the inventor of the product he is most associated with, he made a great contribution to England's plumbing history and still holds quite a legend.

When the World War I doughboys passed through England – they brought together Crapper's name and the toilet. They saw the words T.Crapper-Chelsea printed on the tanks and coined the slang "crapper" meaning toilet.

To find out more: <http://www.theplumber.com/crapper.html>

Regardless of the debate – you can still use this date to send out a letter to your clients, use a tag line of something like:

Are you flushing your money down the toilet?

Or feature your letter around things we take for granted (flush versus most of the world without flush). How has your product improved the lives of others etc. ?

Grabber: mini toilet, toilet paper made into coupon, flush handles

January 30th - Lone Ranger Debuted

Idea: Do you have some hidden talent within your company? Introduce some of your help to your clients – or more about yourself? Consider doing a "resume" of the skills of the person you want to introduce.

Grabber: Insert a black mask with the letter. Start your letter with the tag line (see letter below).

For a sample, I am including my letter that I sent with the above idea. Of course, you would have to develop it to work with your concept (I also included a black mask):

50, 52, & 54, MARLBOROUGH ROAD, CHELSEA, LONDON, S.W.

Dear Friend,

My name is Troy White and you have undoubtedly seen some of my newsletters I've mailed to you over the past few years.

Building a thriving, sustainable business is a passion and a hobby of mine.

I invest tens of thousands of dollars a year in my continuing education. I travel all over Canada and the US to attend seminars put on by some of the best entrepreneurs and business builders in the world. People who have generated hundreds of millions, some of them billions, in businesses and entrepreneurial ventures... a few of them like to share how they do it in a step-by-step manner.

So when I find a certified genius in income creation for Canadian businesses... I had to share.

First, you must know that I personally am writing you this from Calgary, and would not miss hearing what Doug White is revealing on December 12th. In fact, I would climb over broken glass (or drive through Toronto) to be in that room, hopefully alongside you.

As a business professional, you understand the power of a single good idea when it is tested and proven profitable.

When you get the chance to create 10 or 20 profitable ideas, you can grow your revenues and profits very quickly.

In fact, I will make you a deal...

February 2nd – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

February Examples:

"Happiness is having a large, loving, caring close knit family in another city" – George Burns

"All, everything that I understand, I understand because I love" – Leo Tolstoy

"My wife and I have an exclusive relationship. We were invited to a Valentine's party and she excluded me."

Thirty days hath September,
April, June, and November.
All the rest have thirty-one save February, with 28 fine
'til Leap Year makes it 29!

February 5th – Disaster Day

There are some dangers of making assumptions in your marketing and it can turn out to be a disaster day if you do.

It head me on the head like a ton of bricks... assuming your clients and prospects are educated about your area of expertise is costing you a ton of lost money.

As business owners and experts in our own fields we pride ourselves on knowing an extensive amount about our respective industries.

And THAT is the danger we face. When you know quite a bit about an industry - you forget that most people know nothing about it.

I gave a presentation to a group on how to find, create and structure joint ventures. Having done numerous joint ventures with clients in the past - I assumed (and we all know what happens when you ass-u-me things) that they at least knew what a joint venture was.

They had been in business for years... and had yet never even heard of the word - let alone understood how powerful it is for cash flow.

My assumption that they knew this - and my education on reality taught me 2 things that apply to your business.

1) Never assume your clients and prospects know much about your products. Educate them on what your product or service does for them (using testimonials as proof), educate them on ALL the practical uses for your product or service, educate them on all the bizarre uses of your product or service (you may just find another niche for your products), and educate them on why they should do business with you - over all of your competitors (great service and great people are not solid reasons to do business with you - everyone says that).

2) In my case - I was talking to business owners who SHOULD understand the basics of marketing (but didn't - joint ventures are a necessary staple in the marketers tool kit). So, as a business owner -make sure you study and learn how to market your business better. Marketing IS cash flow creation - nothing more and nothing less. When you know how to market your business - you make more money.

When you don't know how to market - you struggle with cash flow. So learn more - and make more.

Assumptions are deadly. Educate and learn. That is the key to your entrepreneurial success

February 9th - The Shoelace was invented in 1790

Idea & Grabber: Think of all the different ways you could use a shoelace. You could attach one to the top of your letters and create a letter something like this:

Dear Customer,

Why have I attached a shoelace to the top of this letter? Actually there are two reasons I have done this:

- 1) The shoelace was invented on February 9th, 1790 and in celebration of this special occasion (a tool we all use every day of our lives) I wanted to share something with you.
- 2) As the letter you are about to read involves tying up some loose ends on my end for 2013, I thought it very appropriate as an attention grabber.

I need to apologize to you. In looking back over the past year, I noticed I was not in touch with you very often and I want to apologize for my mistake.

You see, 2013 was a great year and I thank you for that...but you were probably not informed about _____

February 14th - Valentines Day

Idea: Southwest Airlines specializes in promotions around love. They have a Luvlines newsletter for employees (shareholders) and for customers. They give away love themed stickers, peanuts, pamphlets, talk about how they love their customers, basically they get creative and make it all one big theme. You should do the same.

Grabber: Attach a heart, chocolate or perfume scented envelope to the top of your letter that goes out to them. The letter could start something like this:

Dear Customer,

Why do I love my customers so much?

Let me count the ways...

- 1) Without you, this not only would not be possible, but I wouldn't be able to employ a single mother of three, or provide work for people from all areas of the country.
- 2) Without you, my kids would not have such a care-free life and would not appreciate what it takes to build something from the ground up and see it thrive.

3) Without you, I would be stuck back in a dead-end-corporate-job.

4) Without you, I would not be able to write these love letters - and hear such positive response back every time I mail one out.

February 21st – 1st Telephone Book Issued

Idea: Do you use Yellow Page advertising? Effectively? Some of the most boring advertising can be found in the Yellow Pages! And yet, 40% of your clients buy based on the research they do in the Yellow Pages - 40%! Online yellow pages and offline print directories - it makes no difference.

Flip through your section of the Yellow pages - notice that they all look the same? What possibly gives them a reason to call you over the other 15 companies advertising the same products or services in the exact same style of advertising?

If you are placing Yellow Page Ads this year - give some serious thought on headlines you can use (remember - 80 - 90% of your success is in the headline), make it look like an advertorial, and give them an incentive to pick up that phone and call YOU, not the guy in the ad next to you.

Notice that "advertorial" was mentioned?

The reason - if you use news-style advertising you will get up to 500% better response. This is proven and documented throughout the years. Make your advertising look like some interesting news, or an article - do not make it look like advertising (that is what your competitors are doing).

If it looks like advertising - most people won't read it. Think about it - do you read the articles, or the ads, in the newspapers and magazines you buy?

Idea: Color plays a vitally important role in our world. It can sway thinking, cause reactions and change actions. Depending on the color, it can soothe your eyes or raise your blood pressure. Likewise, the colors used for a product, website, logos or business cards can cause powerful reactions.

What's your business color reflecting to your client? Perhaps it's time to re-look at your marketing materials and use colors that can put your customers into a buying mood or set more of a positive image.

For your clients – let them know that you are thinking about their company. Using the chart below – compare their corporate image with the color chart and write them a personalize letter regarding how their logo makes you want to do more for them. Such as the Wild West Wealth Summit (www.wildwestwealth.com) logo uses red.

Dear Customer,

I came across your "website/business card" the other day and I got to thinking about how you are doing. The red in your logo got me thinking about how passionate you have been with your business.

And I think I can help with that passion....

Here are some of the meaning of the following colors (this is intended for the North American culture):

White – Clean, Pure
Black – Elegant, Powerful, Secretive
Yellow – Warm, Alert, Happy
Red – Passion, Danger, Excitement
Orange – Playful, Vibrant, Energy
Blue – Loyal, Trustworthy, Peaceful
Purple – Wise, Royalty, Celebration

Grabber: of course include a color photo (send one of you with their business card in your hand)

February 23rd – Banana Bread Day

Idea: Please see June 8th for information on how you can use this day to market your service and/or products.

---

February 27th - National Read Your Warranty Day

Idea: Do you guarantee your products? Let your clients know about your warranty. It doesn't have to be a "legal" warranty – but just let them know that you stand behind your products and/or services. Highlight some special features that guarantees they are getting the best deal from you or show them how unlike your competition – you have a guarantee. Even mail them your competitions ads and how you can do better than them.

---

March 3rd – I Want You To Be Happy Day

Idea: Have you considered using emotions in your marketing? American Demographics reported that shoppers with an emotional tie to a store visit the store 24% more and spend 46% more than those without the emotional attachment.

Look at what this means to your business. Let's assume that a business has clients that visit (or buy online or by mail) once a month and spend (on average) $65.

The simple technique of using emotional attachments in their marketing and promotions makes a dramatic difference!

Here's what happens...

After they tie in some emotion into their marketing and customer satisfaction systems they would see those same clients would visit the store 15 times in a year (versus 12) and would spend on average $95.

Before:  $12 \times $65 = $780$  in a year

After:  $15 \times $95 = $1,470$  in that same year!

Almost double the sales - just with giving your customers an emotional reason to like you.

Simple, yet profound. What emotions do your customers feel when they use your products and services? What should they be feeling? What can you do to make them feel that more?

This simple little technique can easily double your sales this year. Maybe wanting your clients to be happy is worth a try?

March 3rd – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

March Examples:

"Why are people so tired on April 1st? Because they just finished a 31-day March"

"Spring is nature's way of saying, 'Let's party!'" - Robin Williams

"Some people march to a different drummer and some people polka"

"March is said to 'come in like a lion, out like a lamb!'"

March 10th - First Paper Money issued (first issued in 1862)

Idea: Tell your customers how you will save them some money with the use of your product or service. Tell them that you know they value their bucks. Could also be used with a St. Patrick's Day promotion by tying in money and buckets of gold? Or tie in the grabber idea with the actual invention of the game of Monopoly on March 7th.

---

March 14th - International Ask A Question Day

---

Do you have an FAQ section for your website or brochure? This is a great day to start one if not. For example, send out an email to your clients answering a list of popular questions that your clients ask you.

The email could start with something like this:

Today is International Ask A Question Day and it had me thinking that I have been meaning to address some popular questions I have received lately. Another idea would be to answer some bizarre questions about your business or yourself. You could also interview one of your employees with some interesting questions and include the article in a future newsletter

You could have this as a regular feature each month highlighting a different employee. This is a great way for your clients to get to acquainted with your staff.

Some questions you could ask could include:

- If you were ever to be reincarnated, what would you come back as?
- If you had the chance to have a super power, what would you choose?
- If you had $5,000 to spend in one day, what would you do?
- What's the weirdest phobia you have?
- What's the first thing you do when you wake up?
- What's the last thing you do before you go to sleep?
- If you could have a luncheon with any three people (real or fictitious/ from any time period, dead or alive) , which three people would you choose and why?
- If you were stranded on a lonely beach, what are the five things that you would want to survive?

March 15th - Chatrooms debut on Internet (1974)

Idea: Chatrooms are hugely popular on the internet with the young and the old. The oldest form of true chat rooms are the text-based variety. Talkomatic, developed on the PLATO system around 1974, has a strong claim to have been the prototype of the text-only chat room.

Have you been too busy to chat with your clients lately? If so, you are missing out on a huge opportunity to connect with them. Here is a sample postcard you could start with to try and grab their attention to sit down and have a chat about your company and/or offer them a solution to save some money.

March 17th - Saint Patrick's Day

Idea: Another popular holiday! And another marketing promotion you shouldn't miss! Everyone loves the idea of getting lucky (both in winning prizes and in other non-business-related ways). Or offer them a "lucky prize" for being among the first 35 people to take you up on your Saint Patrick's day special.

Grabber: Tie your promotion around the idea of either a 4-leaf-clover or around the idea of winning something or getting a lucky break on something. Or attach a bubble gum coin, or Shamrock sticker to the top of your letter that goes out to them. The letter could start:

Dear Customer:

"Want to get lucky?" (OR Alternatively - "My luck is your good luck"... OR "I got lucky last week" - and you benefit)

It's about time I extend to you some of the good luck I have recently enjoyed. You see, the last 12 months has been absolutely incredible - and I have you to thank! If it wasn't for wonderful customers like you, we'd have been out of business long ago.

So, in honor of Saint Patrick's Day, I want to extend to you a Lucky-To-Have-Customers-Like-You Special.

If you are looking to improve the quality of your life, I want to extend to you a 40% bonus (10% for every leaf on a 4 leaf clover). Pick option A and I will upgrade what you get and add on 40% more products and services - for the same price!

Here is what you would get...etc...

March 18th – World Story Telling Day

Idea: Carnegie Mellon did a fascinating study on the power of story telling vs hard core statistics in your marketing.

You may think you know the results, but I bet you would never guess the results and the implications for marketing.

The results surprised me too.

The first test they ran involved a sales letter promoting a non-profit.

The people involved received 2 versions of the sales letter.

One version told a heart wrenching story about a girl that lived in the 3rd world country...

...the other shared the facts on what dismal living conditions the people lived in, the numbers of them without fresh water, without food, etc.

Then they measured how much each of the test groups donated to each letter.

The letter sold 118% more with the story based letter.

So despite what you may think about people who just want the facts, real life shows a very different outcome.

But it gets even more interesting...

Then they tested an approach that used BOTH story and facts in the same letter.

'Logic' would say that using both story and facts in the same letter would appeal to the analytical buyers and more emotional buyers all at once.

You'd think it would improve results...

But it did the opposite.

It did sell more than the pure facts approach (25.4% increase), but it sold 39.9% less than the pure story approach.

So story definitely sells far better than the facts based approach.

It gets better...

They then tested a theory that 'priming' the different groups would impact sales ad well.

One group they primed by having them do mathematical calculations before being presented with the analytical approach.

The other was primed with more emotional hot buttons and their reactions to emotional hot buttons... Prepped with the emotional words before seeing the emotional words.

Those primed with analytical exercises before the analytical letter bought 12% LESS than the mixed emotions/facts letter.

Those primed with emotional exercises bought basically the same as without the priming (actually 1.7% less).

The lesson?

Sales and marketing campaigns based on emotional stories will outperform anything else.

This works in business to business. This works in business to consumer

Having a great signature story in your marketing campaigns will improve your results...

If one great story could improve the sales in the Carnegie Mellon study by 118%...

PS: As I was wrapping this article up, I realized this was all facts... with a little bit of story mixed in. Which, according to the study is not a good thing.

So I will end with a quick story. I have written extensively about Kinjo Sushi in Calgary. The fact that they are thriving in an industry that has regular business failures.

The fact that they sell out the seats in their restaurant 5-9 TIMES a day. Yes, 100% sold out over 5 times a day.

They fill the seats – feed them – entertain them – send them on their way... quickly. The fact that the owner of this place used a great story to build his last empire of 35 franchises.

The fact that they have NEVER done advertising before... every single one of their clients come to them as a result of word of mouth.

Why? It's cold, dead, fish... right? Well – they have a secret weapon... Peter Kinjo. Peter gets this. He knows that people buy when they are entertained and they are given a great story to share with others. And they do!

They tell their friends about the wacky guy and the big knife.

The free sushi they got.

The free chocolate they got.

The incredible service.

That's all it takes... a great story for your customers to share.

“Companies That Care Day” brings pride back to local business

YOUR CITY, STATE – Today's Date – At a time when corporations are taking over the business battle front, small businesses that still prize their community should be applauded. That is why a local business owner takes pride as they plan to celebrate Companies That Care Day on March 17 and are urging other business to do the same.

YOUR FULL NAME who owns YOUR BUSINESS NAME in YOUR CITY will be celebrating “Companies That Care Day” by giving back to their community.

“It is so important to give back to your community, especially since your business is a part of that community. Show your community that you care just as much about it as you care about your business,” YOUR LAST NAME says.

“What can your business do for the community?” YOUR LAST NAME asks. S/He suggests you can just write a check for a local group, but there’s more fun – and the chance for more publicity by being creative.

“If you’re a bakery give some bread to the local shelter,” YOUR LAST NAME says. “Sell an exclusive product, where all the proceeds will benefit a charity. Collect donations in a jar and present them to a nonprofit.”

YOUR LAST NAME will be giving back to YOUR CITY on March 17th by what you will do for the community. For example give 20% that day to your local YMCA or other town organization or school.

Founded in Year, Name of Business helps your target market to do what by how you do it

March 27th – National Joe Day (everyone who hates their name can be called Joe)

Idea: It’s time to get personal with your frequent clients and stop calling them the “Average Joe”. Try to remember their first name and any other tid-bit information you can about their lives.

You are losing out on a huge opportunity to create a memorable service experience – simply calling someone by their first name when they walk in the door can really make an impact. Think about the TV show “Cheers” theme song “Where everybody knows your name” – people like the experience.

April – International Customer Loyalty Month

Idea: April is a great month to start rewarding your customers for their loyalty and keep them coming back. Consider handing out frequent customer cards (nail salons, sandwich shops & flower stores use stamp cards quite frequently to keep their customers coming back). Every time your customer purchases from you, they are one step closer to a freebie item. For new customers, let them know that you will offer them a discount off their next service or purchase from you. This can build affinity with your business. Using an offer code or including a coupon with their first service will help you calculate the program’s return on investment.

April – Baseball Opening Day

Idea: Hitting a homerun with wacky marketing stunts

One of the most creative industries for fun promotions?

The sports industry.

And YES, it does apply to you.

No matter what field we are talking about (pun intended), the ideas behind these promotions could easily be changed to fit your own.

The sports marketing industry is very creative and they have to draw a lot of people out to their games... so their marketing had better be good!

Imagine if you had to get 10,000 people to pay you money every single week or month... what would you do?

Many with the marketing mindset aim for product launches and successful campaigns for single products. But what would you do if you had a weekly event to sell out that delivered pretty well the same experience?

Here are some great ideas that sports teams have used to get people through the gates, money in hand.
As you go through these, PLEASE start thinking about how you could make one or more of them work in your business.

I guarantee they could... if you try.

- * The promotions could be for a sale.
- * For a launch.
- * For a fun event.
- * For a customer appreciation party.
- * Or just to get some free publicity.
- * As a co-operative promotion with other like-minded businesses
- * As a seminar or workshop
- * As a theme party you throw for all the photos and videos you could use

Or any one of a hundred different reasons to get your customers and prospects interacting with you.

Wacky Marketing from the field

Bald head night: anyone who has their head shaved gets in for free.

Mustache Appreciation Night: Fresno Grizzlies fans were encouraged to grow mustaches. They also were incented to encourage their friends to contribute $ to a worthy cause as part of the promotion. Contests were also held for "best in show," "best Tom Selleck look-alike," and most pathetic attempt at a mustache. Great times – and great results.

Second Chance Night: Probation officers got in for free. As well as anyone who brought in a traffic ticket and promised to never do it again also got in for free.

Kevin Federline Night: The first 3,000 fans got free temporary K-Fed tattoos. They also got to watch videos of K-Feds rise through the ranks, and a dance contest between the dance troop to which Kevin Federline once belonged and the Grizzlies' mascot.

The Hagerstown (Maryland) Suns had a McDreamy Day: Everyone was encouraged to dress the medical part... and to know their medical lingo to win prizes.

Or what about Anger management night – held by the Augusta (Georgia) Green Jackets. One of their rival teams manager had a meltdown... so let's turn it into a promotion! They offered the first 250 fans free stress balls and DVDs of the movie Anger Management.

[Look at all the new movies out and coming out on dvd – is there any way you can tie a promotion into the theme of the movie? The newest as of this week: Mall Cop, Valkyrie, My Bloody Valentine, Million Dollar Mutts, The Last Word, The Grudge, Flirting With Forty, The Curious Case of Benjamin Button, New In Town, Addicted to Plastic, Defiance, Gran Torino. Street Fighters, 45 RPM, to name just a few]

How can you go wrong with a Britney Spears promo? She certainly gives us all lots of great opportunity to make fun of her antics. The Newark (New Jersey) Bears held a Britney Spears Baby Safety Night. Anyone who dressed as a baby, brought a baby toy, or brought an actual baby got in for free. Everybody else that attended received a brochure about baby safety.

[NOTE: before you get uptight about how "hokey" or "unprofessional" these events sound... remember how many TICKETS they sold. Thousands and thousands of tickets sold per event. They didn't worry about the "hokeyness" of the event... they cared about the newsworthy parts of the promotion only. News and buzz gets people talking about buying... these events did everything you and I should be aiming for!]

The San Antonio Missions held a Used Car Night and gave away a dozen luxury used automobiles randomly.

Or how about the Southwest Michigan Devil Rays and their College Course Giveaway Night? Each fan received a free three-credit course of their choice at nearby Kellogg Community College.

The Charleston RiverDogs minor league baseball team is a master at using wacky promotions to get people in the seats. Some of their events: a Run, Forrest, Run 5-K Race; My Hot Dog Is Green Night and Salute to the G-string Night in which select fans will receive a G-string.

Get this... they even had a Vasectomy Night where a lucky male fan would win a vasectomy. That was canceled after management received complaints. Talk about getting some press!

Or this: they even staged a Nobody Night, locking out fans at the door as the club attempted to set a minor league record for lowest attendance at a game.

Steal of a deal. Recessionary promotion gone wild with the Minnesota twins offering an entire season (81 games) for only $250. Comparable seats in New York go for $250 per seat – per game.

Hungry fans unite! The Athletics, Orioles, Rangers, Royals, Braves, Dodgers and Padres all have designated All-You-Can Eat sections for fans hungry to see more than a game. Ranging from $30 – $45 per person to eat their way through the game.

Musical fan fare. The Pirates have offered up REO Speedwagon and Collective Soul and the Marlins offer KC and the Sunshine Band. The Devil Rays have the most interesting series featuring The Commodores, Trace Adkins, Kool And The Gang, LL Cool J and MC Hammer. (could you not offer something like this in any of your promotions with lesser know artists?)

Luring them in. The Twins promotion department hooked some new fans by offering a Joe Mauer fishing lure. Only available to the first 5,000 fans, this was a run away winner.

How about some NON sports promotions?

What about the Beer-for-Bags event, which the company promoted that they would accept beer for merchandise. They grew their sales by 20% using this promotion (including all the free publicity they received as well). The company hopes to make "Beer For Bags" an annual event, as it is in Australia.

Gonigam's World Furniture Mall near Chicago offered customers up to $10,000 of free furniture if the Chicago Bears shut out the Green Bay Packers (which they did). The company had prize reimbursement insurance to cover their backs. They saw huge traffic growth to their site and an increasing amount of new sales to people who never bought from them before.

Long John Silver's offered to give customers free "Giant Shrimp" if NASA found conclusive evidence of an ocean on Mars.

This is a great list you could use anytime you need a promotion.

The key is to MAKE IT FIT.

I realize 99% of those who read this blog are NOT in the sports marketing business. But... so what? Why can't you put some time and effort into this list and find some ways to use these ideas?

Keep your eyes on the local news, industry news, Hollywood movies, strange trends, technology trends, and pretty well anything you see on the covers of the magazines like Star, National Enquirer, The Globe, etc (those are the ones the majority of the population reads... and you should be finding a way to tie into them!)

All it takes is some effort – and the results could be exceptional.

April 4th – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

April Examples:

"In the spring I have counted one hundred and thirty-six different kinds of weather inside of four and twenty hours." - Mark Twain

"Isn't it appropriate that the month of tax begins with April Fool's Day and ends with cries of "May Day"!"

"The IRS should change their initials to IOS – Internal Organ Service. On April 15th, they bill you for the service of ripping out your guts"

"April comes like an idiot, babbling and stewing flowers" – Edna St. Vincent Millay

April cold with dropping rain.
Willows & Lilacs Brings again,
The whistle of returning birds
And trumpet-lowing of the herds

April 5th – Go For Broke Day

Are you a gambler? Then today could be your day. It's Go For Broke Day. Put it all on the line and take a chance. It might be money or could be time to initiate a risky project or just put yourself out there.

We tend to go around daily playing it safe and not taking big chances but without a risk you can find yourself without a gain.

For example, a simple change below can make a huge different in your financial future.

Some people amaze me. They will go out and spend $3,000 on a big screen television, yet whine and complain about having to invest $500 in their financial future.

How can that be so?

Does a television help you become more successful? Maybe if you are watching training dvds or educational shows. But you certainly don't need a 60" screen for that now, do you?

So how can it be so easy for people to justify that kind of expense... yet whine and complain about the price of coaching programs, training packages – and live seminars?

It just doesn't make sense to me.

In fact, it boggles my mind.

That tv will not make you money. It will not help you accomplish more in your business. It will not give you the edge in your marketing. It will do absolutely NOTHING to help you realize your dreams.

The two things it will do?

Cause you to LOSE money (never heard of a tv that appreciates in value)... and cause you to LOSE motivation towards doing the things that are important.

Yes, they look great – and yes, they are a nice "toy" to have.

But, if you have ever complained about your financial situation – and you DO own a large tv – give your head a shake!

That same amount of money can be invested in an advertising campaign that could make you $10,000 profits (or much more).

That same amount of money could be invested in hiring a coach – that helps you DOUBLE your revenues over the next 12 months. Or it could buy you that home study course that finally helps you understand how to write better ads and sales letters – and finally helps you achieve that consistent cash flow you want.

That same amount of time you spend GLUED to your behemoth tv, you could be using to connect with others, or writing articles to attract search engine traffic, or writing a new sales campaign to test against your existing one.

A few hours a night X 5 nights a week watching the tube is the equivalent to a FULL WEEK of work (focused work that is).

Think about it – when you watch tv, you are stuck to the tv, absolutely focused on what is going on, scared to miss a plot line. If you FOCUSED like that for a full 3 hours a night on your business, WOW!, would you ever accomplish a lot more.

Next time you sit down to your tv, think hard about how else you could invest your time.

Financial freedom... or a big screen tv... not a tough choice to make (at least it shouldn't be).

April 7th - Empowered Women Entrepreneurs Day & No Housework Day

Idea: Know some successful women entrepreneurs that could use a break?

A woman's work is never done may sound like a tired old cliché - but it may be more true than ever. According to a new survey a woman's working week is now half a day longer than it was five years ago - and that's without housework.

The increase is down to the growing number of women in more high-powered management and professional jobs, say researchers. In contrast, the total number of hours worked by men has fallen slightly over the same period - from 45.5 hours to 44.8 hours.

Tell them how much you know and appreciate their work (both inside and outside of the home).

Grabber: Send them a gift certificate for a day's maid service

April 13th – Blame Someone Else Day

Of course, it is always easy to Blame Someone Else for your problems and imagine all the mistakes and errors you can heap on someone else today. But one thing I have noticed is that while you busy putting the blame elsewhere, someone might just be putting the blame on you.

One of the biggest "blaming" I hear all the time is that many business owners use the "lack of time" card as an excuse for everything. And it is time to stop using this excuse and ignoring a simple way that you can fix it.

Hire it out! And stop using the blame game.

You can find very inexpensive help that are experts available to you.

Go to <http://www.elance.com> and post a project request and see if you can find someone qualified to help you out.

Elance.com is one of the best places online to find qualified help at pennies on the dollar! Test it out next time you have some writing to be done, web work, graphic design – you name it.

Note: But, if you are looking for qualified copywriters, elance.com is not your best bet. Why? Because any good quality copywriter avoids elance like the plague. It is designed for price competitive buyers – not performance based results. You may get decent copy done – but if results are important to you – hire someone who prides themselves in the results they get – not how cheap they are!

April 14th – Noah Webster 1st Dictionary Copywritten

In appreciation of the dictionary, today is a good day to think about how words have changed your life. Remember back to the day when your favorite teacher paid you a compliment on your school work.

Or your friend said something that hurts you still to this day. The first time someone said "I love you" or "I hate you."

It's amazing how words can stay with us for years, even decades, and completely change our self confidence and our decisions to do things.

Words - something we are born listening to, we learn how to speak them in a very short period of time, and by the time we are 5 years old we have grasped thousands of words and their meanings.

When we are 5, we know that "I hate you" will make our parents cry. Or "I love you" will make them smile.

At 5 years old, we are already learning how to manipulate words to suit our needs and to get what we want.

At 15, we use words to get ourselves out of trouble.

At 25, we use words to help us get a job if just getting out of college. Or if we didn't go to college, we use words to get ourselves better and better jobs that suit our lifestyle and our dreams.

At 35, we are using words to try and teach our own children the right things to do and say.

Each decade has new teachings and new discoveries on the power of words.

What you must always question - are you using your words to maximum effectiveness?

What if simple 5 word sentence could get you almost any job you want?

Or 3 words that will always get you the best seat in a restaurant, anywhere in the world.

When you learn the power of words and how to train yourself to use more effective words - everything changes.

Things come to you easier, at less cost and with less hassle.

Sales increase dramatically when you find the words that convinces people to buy. Changing one word in your sales script can double your sales - is that not a lot of power held in one single word?

Small businesses are constantly battling for more sales, more profits, more growth. Without those - you are out of business, people lose jobs and families can be broken.

Yet, the power of words is a learnable skill.

Anyone - no matter what background or education, can become a master with using words to influence.

And if you take your business, your income and your future seriously you will spend some time learning more about words and how they can change everything in your life in a very rapid amount of time.

Put some effort into understanding words and how they can help you achieve your goals.

When you are out shopping at the mall, notice the stores that are busy, notice the sales people and how they ask questions or handle objections.

When you are reading newspapers and magazines - notice the articles, or advertisements that make you stop and read. At times they will make you buy something - sight unseen. Almost all of us have done it - bought something through a catalog, an advertisement, a web site etc.

What made you buy?

Local Business Celebrates Its Customers on “Get To Know Your Customer Day”

YOUR CITY, STATE – Today’s Date – What good is business without customers? On January 20th, one local business has decided to show his/her appreciation for his/her customers. It’s “Get to Know Your Customer Day” and getting to know the customers better personally is the goal.

“Get to Know Your Customer Day” focuses primarily on the most important aspect of a business; the customers. “I love this day. It truly shows how much we appreciate and care about our customers,” explains Your Full Name, who owns and runs Name of Business in Name of City. “Of all the companies you patronized, how many told you in some fashion how much they appreciated your business? One? Two? Five? Ten? Unfortunately, the answer is often none! But that’s all changing – at least for our business. Starting on Get to Know Your Customer Day, our goal will be creating a true relationship with every customer.”

April 27th - South American Millepede Found with 784 legs (in 1669)

Idea: Use the following promotion idea and letter suited to how you can save time for your customers (either through your product or service).

Grabber: Attach plastic millipede to top of letter

Dear Customer,

Are You Running Around Aimlessly...Not Getting Done As Much As You Want?

Back in 1669, a 784 legged millipede was found in South Africa that sums up today's society. Lots of leg's, lots of places to go, but end up sticking around the same neighborhood without rhyme or reason (it is proven that despite having 784 legs, this specific breed of millipede rarely went outside a 1 mile radius).

It is tough though. All the places to see, things to do and people to meet - yet time is increasingly short.

What I want to share with you today is a fabulous new system I discovered that helps you gain back at least an extra hour of your time every day. I have used it for the past 6 months and can honestly say I now am getting done an extra 10 hours of productive time a week - which also is equating to an additional $5,500 income each and every month from sales growth.

Before this system though, let me share with you how a typical day looked for me....etc....

May 5th – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

Grabber:

"My mother never gave up on me. I messed up in school so much they were sending me home, but my mother sent me right back"
– Denzel Washington

"A family is a unit composed not only of children but of men, women, an occasional animal, and the common cold." - Ogden Nash

"Why is there so much month left at the end of the money?" - John Barrymore

Then came fair May, the fairest maid on ground,
Deck'd all with dainties of the season's pride,

May 11th - Mothers Day

Idea: Everybody has a mother or someone close to them (sister, aunt, best friend etc.) – don't miss this marketing opportunity.

Grabber: Attach mini flowers, or a bandaid (mothers were always great at fixing boo-boos) Here is a sample letter:

Dear Customer,

or...

Mothers Day Madness - Attention All Distraught Mothers Who Are In Serious Need Of Some Pampering...

You know how it works...Mothers day arrives and on the day you are supposed to be relaxing, kicking back and enjoying life, you end up cooking meals, doing laundry and pretty well doing everything you do on a typical day.

No more - not this Mothers Day.

May 30 - Australia's first dentist Simon Lear starts to yank out teeth (1818)

Ideas: How many ideas can you come up with around the idea of yanking teeth - or hating to visit a dentist - or a job where no one enjoys or appreciates you?

Grabber: tooth on a chain attached

June 3rd – Repeat Day

Have you been measuring & testing everything? Do you know what promotions or marketing campaigns to repeat? Since it is Repeat Day, today is a great day to measure and test your efforts. As mentioned previously,

One thing you need to do is track EVERYTHING. Noting what works, what didn't, how well it works or didn't, exactly what you did, etc.

The easiest way to do this is keep a simple excel spreadsheet (or something similar) detailing everything that has happened.

Then it is time to rank the results you got.

Rank it:

- 1 – stellar success and either brought in a ton of sales, new leads, or positive comments from your customers and prospects.
- 2 – marginally successful – broke even on profits (or small profit), got a few new leads or positive comments
- 3 – not good results at all – lost money or time for nothing, no new leads or sales, no one even noticed you during your attempt
- 4 – disgustingly bad – big loser, negative feedback and comments, complete waste of time for your business

Rank every thing you have done over the last 7 exercises – from 1 through 4.

Then separate them into 1's and 2's – then another group of 3's and 4's

The 1's and 2's you are going to do again... the rest you will hold off for now and revisit them in 6 months or so (things change – what didn't work now may work exceptionally well in 6 months – the internet and society is on warp drive right now – never throw out your test results.

You can even go further into detail and give your honest thoughts on why some things worked and didn't. These notes you make could be worth a fortune to you in 6 or 12 months. Rather than reinventing the wheel – you may find you tested it already but forgot it didn't work – or did work.

Now – rank your 1's and 2's into a 1 – 5 list or 1 – 10 or however many things you have listed. This ranking is on your favorite promotion you did that ranked a 1 or 2. What made you the most excited or gave you the most enjoyment? 1 being your most favorite – 10 being least. Take your top 3 of them. List on a new page of paper.

Now write out how you can make them better, more fun, more exciting, more profitable, more enticing, more powerful, more appealing to the emotions... anything you can think of to make it better – write it down.

| $50 Gift cert                                                  | 1               | $97 investment for printing = $3947 in sales!                                                   | Definitely run to existing clients twice a year                                                                                 |

Post these types of results on a regular basis. Keep in marketing results binder – review monthly – or whenever you need new promotion ideas.

With the above example – you would definitely want to repeat ALL the 1's at least one more time a year, test the 2's again – and don't bother running the 3's.

THINGS TO TEST

(only test one thing at a time or test is invalid, test must be run to exact same list or publication as initial control)

- Free samples
- Quantity discounts
- Referral request
- Method of payments (cash, check, ccard, multiple credit card options, purchase orders, extended payments)
- Method of response: phone, mail, email, web, fax, in-store
- Regular envelop vs larger
- Live stamps vs pre-printed
- Teaser copy on envelope vs none
- Window envelope vs regular
- Life letter (cover letter) vs none
- Form of order card (BRC or fax in)
- Signature in blue ink vs black
- Different headlines
- Handwriting in margins or spread throughout
- 1 page letter vs multiple page
- 4 page letter vs 12 page
- Opening paragraph
- Change the PS
- "up the ante" with bonuses
- Color vs black and white or 4 color vs 2 color
- Textured paper vs plain
- White paper vs color
- White order form vs color
- Font size or Different font
- Guarantee length
- Bonus bundle
- Boxes for testimonials and sidebars
- Straight line boxes or dashed lines
- Deadlines vs no deadlines
- List rental – try new sources – new lists – hotline buyers
- Write as if from you vs write as if from someone else (staff, spouse, client, supplier)

TIPS FOR REVIEWING YOUR SUCCESS PACKAGES

1. Review and note (on separate tracking file) the control package. Make a list of all the key components: copy, offer, PS, headline, graphics, envelopes. Note who exactly it was mailed to. Color or black and white?
2. Only record FACTS – never your feelings or impressions. What may seem like it won't work, can end up being your most successful package. And vice versa – what seems like your best work ever, may flop badly.
3. Once you have a control – are there ways you can do the same package – but at a lower cost? Test it again – with cheaper paper, envelopes, in black and white instead of color, etc. You may find the same results with a much cheaper package

Marketing is useless if you don't know the results. You MUST test everything – and test consistently throughout the year, logging all of your results.

The simplest of tests can reveal MASSIVE breakthroughs that put serious money in your pocket.

Start writing out your results NOW.

June 5 – National Family Day

---

Ideas: Is it time to invite your customer's to be apart of your family? National Family Day is a great way to invite your customers to join into your business family or meetings. Here is a sample email letter which you will need to adapt to your services however this was used to entice individuals to become of apart of a business meeting circle.

Subject: A special Family Day notice to (your state/province) Business Owners

Happy Family Day!

I realize that family day is a day to spend with your family... but I want to invite you to become a member of a new family.

Monday night you can be surrounded by people... more like family, who really understand what being an entrepreneur is like.

Once a month we meet, Owen Garrat is the man in charge of the family meetings.

The third Monday of every month the family gets together in Calgary...1 day later, the third Tuesday of every month, the family meets in Edmonton. It's terrific to get around people who are going through the challenges of running a small business, just like we are, all meeting to share war stories, ideas and support.

We talk about business growth issues, marketing and advertising, employee challenges, and many other important questions and issues that small businesses in Alberta go through etc.

June 19th - National Lobster Day

The Story of 2 Brothers, a Lobster Boat, and Millions of Dollars In Revenue

In order to create fast revenue growth in your business, I first want to start with one of my favorite success stories. Rest assured, the story you are about to hear is not only true; it is documented and proven by:

- Fortune
- CBS News
- MSNBC
- CNN Money
- USA Today
- ABC
- NPR
- Incentive
- Urban Daddy
- Luxist
- Gourmet
- The Nibble
- Port City Life Portland Press
- Monterey Bay Aquarium
- Marketplace
- MaineBiz
- Manage Smarter
- Perspective
- Down East

...to name just a few.

What I love most about this story is that the gentlemen you are about to meet, took an age-old business model and completely revolutionized the way money is made.

Not only that, they are both still under 30 yrs old and run a million dollar business.

The best part: the techniques they used to build a million dollar business in months apply to YOUR business. They work with any business that is willing to try something new... and break the "traditional" ways you make money and build relationships with your customers.

What makes their story so great?

Brendan Ready and his brother John grew up in a lobster fisherman family. From a young age they were either helping out on the docks in Maine, or were out on the boat with their uncle pulling in lobsters they had caught. Eventually they had saved up enough money to buy their own boat and traps, and go out on their own.

They put together a business called Ready Seafoods, which followed the traditional path of selling lobsters off the docks, just like everyone else.

One day they had an idea they wanted to test...

... "what would happen if we bucked tradition, packed up our lobsters, drove for 2 hours, and sold them on Martha's Vineyard?"

A fair question... one they are very glad they asked.

Next thing you know, their lobsters were sold out and they had pocketed 3 times as much revenue as they would have selling from the dock.

This very affluent island did not have lobstermen there selling their goods ... and the residents of the island were willing to pay a substantial premium to buy from the brothers. (They were the only ones willing to do the drive up there.)

They also found out that there were other customers out there, just like those customers on Martha's Vineyard, who were willing to pay a premium for the best possible product and service available.

Not only that, they also started to notice that their customers were asking a lot of questions about the lifestyle of a lobsterman. They wanted to know about the experience of us going out on the water every day at 4:00 in the morning, going out with the boat as the sun rises, with the seagulls, and being independent with a passion and a dream.

Customers wanted to be a part of it, almost like belonging to that strong working waterfront industry, that strong sense of tradition, that strong sense of heritage that the Maine community has.

And the money was rolling in.

Which their mother noted. "Boys, I know you are making good money now, but don't get too cocky... you are going back to school" she said.

Off to business school they went.

And they took their thriving lobster business with them and used the business classes as test beds for new and improved ideas they could try out in their business.

And the BIG Breakthrough Idea soon came.

A new business, called Catch a Piece of Maine, was formed (they still ran Ready Seafoods). And everyone told them they were crazy...

...no one would buy.

...you will destroy your business and reputation.

...And every other prediction of their demise was loudly stated to them.

Everyone told them how bad of an idea it was...

...until the money started pouring in.

Catch a Piece of Maine sells memberships to their lobster club.

Now, instead of buying lobsters here and there... you first pay $3,000 for a membership.

With your membership, you get a dedicated Lobsterman, your own lobster trap, and up to 47 lobsters a year delivered to you when you want them.

So, if you are having a party this Friday night, you'd call them up on Tuesday and they would have an insulated cooler of live Lobsters delivered to your door the afternoon of your party.

Need 2 lobsters?

No problem.

Having a party for 8? No worries.

Not only did you receive the lobsters, but you also got lobster bibs, the crackers for the shells, Maine steamer clams, Maine mussels, and four servings of gourmet Maine-made desserts made from local purveyors from the state of Maine.

Each shipment of lobster that comes from your lobster trap comes with a DVD of your lobsterman showing your catch, a map of where your lobsters were caught, who your harvester is, the story of the man behind the catch, and also any other personalized gifts that you want to be sent inside of your package. They would talk about their family, talking about the lifestyle, talking about how to catch lobsters, and showing you how and when they pulled your lobsters in. You got their direct cell phone number, and you got their blog address (each lobsterman is paid to keep an active blog going).

Instead of selling lobsters...

They were now selling an experience for those customers who want more than what's offered in the marketplace.

What they did is find a way to create an interactive program where they could actually involve the high-end customer to partner with them in the industry and basically be a virtual lobsterman for an entire year.

It's a unique experience where you can have a direct relationship with your harvester.

You can follow him throughout the entire year. You have your own lobster trap where you can actually physically view it online and see how many lobsters it catches every day.

Think of it as your own personal lobster concierge service right there in Portland, Maine, where the lobster, seafood, anything else to do with Maine, is provided to you..

Did it work?

Their goal was to sell 400 memberships at $3,000 each in their first year.

They sold 200 memberships in their first 3 months!

And more than their initial goal in the first year.

A million dollar business was born...
in a way everyone said wouldn't work.

This is a very viral program, meaning that customers tell their friends about it.

Remember, they are targeting a more affluent clientele, the type of buyer who is very difficult to reach through traditional marketing and advertising. Yet, some of these affluent customers carry a picture of their lobsterman around in their purse or wallet with them, wherever they're going.

They carry their DVD with them when they go to parties, and put it in just because it's so fun for them to say they have their own lobsterman here in Maine. "Look what he sent me for my birthday."

Brilliant.

Think about it: every time they have a dinner party (which is typically also with more affluent friends as well), they are talking about their Lobsterman, their traps, they are sharing their lobsters and deserts, and they are gladly spreading the good word about Catch a Piece of Maine... to people who are very likely to become members as well.

The word of mouth is incredible using this model!

Their existing clients help them do their marketing, and help find them the exact type of buyer that is willing to pay the membership fee.

Not only that, the uniqueness of this business has captured the media's attention and Catch a Piece of Maine has received a substantial amount of free publicity. To pay for the type of media coverage they have gotten for free would have cost them hundreds of thousands of dollars... possibly into the million + range.

Now, what does this have to do with you?
How can you use similar techniques to rapidly grow your business, even in uncertain times?

What follows is a proven formula for growing your business, improving your cash flow, and attracting very high quality buyers into your sales funnel. We discuss how you can leverage the Catch a Piece of Maine success blueprint into your business, and how other tools can further help you make a lot more money.

Most importantly, how you can invest just an hour a day and see rapid growth in your first 60-90 days. An hour a day may seem like a lot now, but when you look at the bankable results you will get from that hour, it becomes much easier the more you do and the more experienced you get.

How To THRIVE In a Recession.

McGraw Hill Research just released some fascinating results from a major study they did. Over the period of a 5 year span, they went out and surveyed 600 businesses from a cross section of different industries. During the 5 year span, there was one recession that took place. The companies that maintained or grew their marketing efforts during the recession ended up growing 256% over the 5 years. The companies who chose to shrink their marketing efforts during the recession only grew by 19%. The same recession... one company grows by 256%... the other by a paltry 19%. The only difference? Those that grew most did MORE marketing, not less. The main reason you are reading this now is to improve your business and cash flow... marketing IS the key to do both. As you go through this guide, make sure you answer the questions and seriously put thought into the exercises given. If it means the difference to you between 256% growth and 19% growth... it's obvious why this is so important!]

LESSONS FROM THE LOBSTER BROTHERS:

- Do what your competitors aren't willing to do to open up new territories.
- Go where the real money is ... and charge appropriately.
- Find areas that are not being served properly.
- Be creative in how you pay your team members – get them excited about how much they can make ... and how much of a mini-celebrity you are making them.

Charge very high premiums for a unique service and product that creates an unforgettable experience ... one they can't wait to share with their

Catch a Piece of Maine has created such a unique offering and customer relationship that a significant percentage of their business comes direct from referrals and word of mouth. Imagine if they had placed ads in all the major papers and magazines saying "Lobster Club Memberships... $3,000. Call with credit card number." It would be a dismal failure, yet that is what most businesses do!

The prices and offer may be different, but the expectation of getting an order direct from a small business card sized ad is the same. It just doesn't work. Ask yourself this: what are you doing different that inspires people to want more information from you? Are you positioning yourself in the marketplace (and in front of the right kind of buyers) to stand out from your competition with your offer, or are you creating an entirely NEW market, like Catch a Piece of Maine did? How could you?

Catch a Piece of Maine went out and sold a whole new concept to the marketplace. Rather than selling canned lobsters, or trying to compete on price, they LISTENED to their affluent buyers on Martha's Vineyard. The buyers who were paying a premium for their lobsters on the island loved asking questions about the lifestyle of a lobsterman.

They wanted to know about the early mornings on the boats, about the art and science of catching lobsters, and about the great family ties the Ready brothers got their start with.

Troy White

Rather than dismissing the questions as curiosity... the brothers saw it as an opportunity and gave their affluent buyers what they wanted... direct access to the boats and fisherman, and an insiders view on what it is like to catch, ship and eat lobsters on demand.

They gave them private access to a lifestyle many of these people saw as enviable... and gave them a very interesting story they could share with their friends.

Instead of selling lobsters, they crafted their message to match what their market wanted... and a winner was born!

Questions for you to consider:

- 1) What questions are your customers asking you most often? Do they ask you about how your products are made? Where you source your ingredients or components? How you got started? Start paying very close attention to the questions your customers are asking... those questions can be the entire foundation of your new marketing and sales campaigns.
- 2) Are you giving your customers a unique experience in the way they buy? How could you?
- 3) When someone buys from you, are you delivering them a good experience they would be proud to share with their friends and associates? How could you? Can you make it easier for them to tell the story about your business?

Marketing Sherpa did a major study with thousands of internet buyers to find out why they did or didn't buy from the websites they visit. The #1 reason people didn't buy? Lack of information. 50% of prospective buyers, ones who are ready to buy right now, will abandon your site and avoid making a purchase because you are not giving them enough targeted information to help in their purchase decision. The message is KEY. Get it right by asking them what they want, and then give it to them in a format that convinces them to buy.

Give your prospects something for free in exchange for their contact information. That way, you can stay in touch with them.

Need an example? An earlier version of the free ebook you are now reading prompted tens of thousands of people to add their names to my mailing list, as you did.

If you visit the Catch a Piece of Maine website (www.catchapieceofmaine.com), you will see a large number of videos scattered around. The videos show funny promotions they have done. They show them on the boat talking about their business. Talking about the lifestyle. Talking about what makes them unique in a very cluttered world. Those videos are very compelling to the right prospect and a large percentage of them become members on their program.

They could also add some additional free giveaways like a Lobster Cookbook, maybe an ebook of stories and photos from their fisherman, maybe even an ebook showing testimonials from their clients and how they use the membership program in their home, maybe in their business as well.

The more freebies you give people in exchange for their contact information, the easier it will be to follow up and close the sale. If they are willing to hand over their contact details, they have already said they are somewhat interested in what you do. Now is the time for doing everything you can to win them over and get them as a paying customer.

Use your lead generation system in conjunction with your ads, mailings and website to maximize your list of qualified prospects - people who like to hear from you.

Catch a Piece of Maine told their prospects right from day 1 that there were only 400 memberships available. And it was a significant factor in them selling so many, so fast.

Things you can limit:

- Quantity of products
- Quantity of memberships
- Timeline the offer is good for
- Amount of bonuses they get
- One time offers
- Free upsell to a bigger and better option
- Payment or financing offers
- Time of day you can place your order or visit your store for the specials
- Quantity or quality of person accepted into your offer
- Send no money now - pay in 30+ days

One thing the brothers that won Catch a Piece of Maine noticed was an unusually high number of clients who wanted even higher end options. They wanted more... and were willing to pay for it. They now offer high end travel packages to their members.

If you want to visit them, stay with them, go out on the boats with them... they now have a higher end option you can pay for. It certainly isn't inexpensive, but the type of buyer they have is much less concerned with the price than the experience they get.

A very important lesson is there: people will pay a high premium for an unusual experience they can share with others.

Is there any way you can offer a high end offer with a high end experience? Test it out! Even if only 5% of your customers take you up on it... the profits from your high end offer to 5% of your customers can be greater than the profits you make from the other 95%.
Worth a test.

A simple way to build ties with your clients and employees

A great lesson to be learned from Catch a Piece of Maine! A profitable way to keep in touch with people is to use the people-story angle, and lock your employees in as lifetime employees is to use *them* as the star of your promotions.

Have a newsletter or promo that goes out telling a strange or unusual story about what happens in the office while you are gone. And just this time they decided to surprise the boss and offer you a deal that has never been offered before – once in a lifetime type of angle.

This brings “the underdogs” or “the people who do the actual grunt work” to the front lines and lets them give you things that are not available at any other time or way.

Also, by making your employees the star in your promotions they will love you forever. We all crave recognition – what better way than to plaster their funny story around along with their picture and send it out to thousands! You can also use your customers as the star of your story. Interview some of your best clients and see if they are interested in a write up. If you deal with other business owners, this is free publicity for them, and will gladly be accepted. If you deal directly with consumers, they will love having a story featured about them... and they will share it with their friends and associates.

Please put this into ACTION! It is the easiest way possible to grow your business by 130% OR MORE in the next 90 days or less.

It isn't rocket science either... it is a systematic formula that applies to any and every business... yes, that means YOURS.

Always remember the Catch a Piece of Maine story as well. They took a commodity business (lobster by the pound and price) and turned it into a very successful membership model that sells lobster at a significant premium to any and all other competitors.

The lobsters are the same as everyone else sells... the marketing message and system they use is the ONLY reason they were able to build a million dollar business in just a few months.

Take everything that you now know about your business and industry... and find a way to recreate the way your clients buy from you and hear from you.

It will make a major difference in the types of clients that buy from you... and from the amount of money you make from the same amount of time being put into your business.

Last, remember the McGraw Hill study. I know you would much prefer growing your business by 256% over 19%... and more effective marketing is the key.

No matter what the economy is doing, more marketing will always improve your bottom line results... when it is done right.

Remember, the tools in this report made these 2 young guys well over a million dollars in revenue in their first year.

The principles can EASILY be applied to YOUR business.

All it takes is some time without distraction, a pen, and a pad of paper.

Take the lessons in this and FIND WAYS to make them fit your own business.

They can easily add some serious dollars to your bank account... IF YOU USE THEM. They don't magically add millions to your pockets... YOU have to do something with them.

Once you do, and you start seeing results, reinvest the additional revenues right away into more marketing, bigger marketing, better marketing. You will easily come out of this recession an entirely new company with a serious surge of cash.

June 25th - LEON Day (LEON is NOEL spelled backwards – 6 months till Xmas)

Ideas: Christmas in June? Why not? Consider launching a Christmas program to get people to start their holiday shopping. By doing this they can prepare their budget – avoid the Christmas rush and the January credit crunch.

Consider even sending out a Christmas cards with your coupon or offer.

Grabber: ornaments, tinsel

July 4th – Hot Mail Email Service Began (1996)

Idea: 7 Critical Email Marketing Rules

Here's how you can increase your sales numbers and attract a better quality client

Email marketing has transformed the way we can grow businesses. From the costly (yet still highly effective) direct mail world with the postage and printing costs... to the new age of instant delivery and little out-of-pocket costs for a mailing.

Email can bring life to your marketing mix and give your prospects and customers an insiders peak into your personality and business endeavors.

That said, email marketing is not a guaranteed moola maker.

In fact, more of them go wrong than right (despite what nonsense many of the 'gurus' are feeding you this week).

It doesn't take much to sit at your computer like I am doing now, and put together a letter to your clients, much like I am to you right now.

What it DOES take is some grey matter to go into your campaign and some formulas that help ensure your odds are improved.

1) Write to ONE person... not hundreds or thousands. Know who your perfect client is. Know them like your best friend. Know what they would say if they were the one writing their life story in a journal.

What would they tell you?

What are their challenges?

What are their frustrations?

What keeps them awake at night tossing and turning?

If you don't know this – you can't write effective emails to them. They will come across as bland, stale, and without a personal connection. BUT, when you DO know who they are (intimately) your email will strike a chord with them unlike any others they receive. (fyi: I actually got to know my one client so well that I ended up marrying her) 11 years now... twin 9 years daughters to add to the mix. You could say I know her very well

Marriage and kids... the roller coaster ride of your life!

2) Leverage your personality. One of your greatest assets, yet highly unlikely being used to its potential. Here are a few key things you can use in your copy that may help.

The key to this is to let loose. This is a unique way of getting inside your head and finding real life ways to position you and your business in the buyers mind. Don't worry about if it is too much or too little... just dump your thoughts on paper.

Sometimes the most unusual of things about you can be the big breakthroughs we are looking for in the marketing and positioning of you.

Have fun... share freely.

- * Pet Peeves
- * Physical Characteristics (Uniqueness)

- * Anything You Are A Legend Of?

If you invest a few hours on this, and write down the points you think of as they come to you, that document will help you write promotions, articles, blog posts and campaigns for years to come.

A definite worthwhile investment.

3) Always try and include something in your promotions that gives an insight, a tip, or something helpful. Even in your promotions, include a PS or a side bar that is helpful. It helps them justify the time they invest in your materials.

4) What makes you unique in your field? Everyone talks about a USP – but, as you’ve probably seen, they are not that simple to create. Ask anyone what the best USPs are, and you will always hear Dominos Pizza, Fedex, etc. Always the same. Why? Because they aren’t that easy to do. Especially in today’s market with soooo many competitors out there – all doing the same thing you are. But there must be something, just one thing, that makes you unique. Right? Find it – then mention it in every email that goes out. Use it on your websites. On your blog. On your invoices. Everywhere you can – spread the word about the one thing that makes you unique. It doesn’t have to be rocket science – Microsoft doesn’t have one – Coke doesn’t have one – even Apple doesn’t have one. So monster success stories didn’t always get that way with an official USP – they just found one or two things they were good at and made that the focus of their marketing.

5) Call to action. Obvious... but not used. Every email you send should have a call to action. That does not mean you sell something every time you email... that is a dangerous path to take. The call to action could be to visit your blog, or reply back with comments, or to fill out a survey (the unsung hero of getting to know your customers). Just ask them to do something.

You should aim for 4 times as much content as promotions.

So one out of every 4 – 5 emails you send can be a promotion.

6) Have more fun with graphics. I am as guilty as charged here – but have been testing different approaches with some retail clients of mine. I found some interesting conversion improves with some very untraditional graphics.

Something I recommend you try.

Think about how people ‘traditionally’ think about your business, product or industry. What is the opposite of that? What graphic could be used to show the 2 opposites? Test it – you may be pleasantly surprised with the results.

7) Always remember Murphy’s Law in your email marketing. If something can go wrong, chances are it will. Pay very close attention to (speaking from my own mess ups): Deadlines are correct, contact details are correct, dates or holidays are the right one (like my mixup on when Canada day is this week – whoops!), etc.

Plan for a contingency.

Think through your email from the point of view of a brand new prospect to your email list. How would they see it? What would they like about it? Dislike about it? Is it worthy of being passed on?

Do your best to factor these 7 rules into your marketing.

July 5th – Work-a-ohlics Day

Local Business Person Celebrates 'Workaholics Day' on July 5

YOUR CITY, STATE – Today's Date – According to Forbes.com, the average Frenchman 18 hours a week; the average Italian about 16.5 and the British work 21.5. But in North America, our idea of full employment is a standard 40-hour week.

Vacations are much shorter than the typical European's, as well. The U.S. worker takes 16 days of vacation each year, less than half that typically taken by the Germans (35 days), the French (37 days) or the Italians (42 days), according to the Wall Street Journal.

With so many workaholics, one local business owner is celebrating Workaholics Day July 5.

On that day, Your Full Name will close their doors for the day. "We don't often encourage people to value leisure," says Your Last Name, who owns and runs Name of Business in Name of City, "I believe that people who work hard and get work done quickly should be rewarded with more leisure time rather than with more work."

Your Last Name points to a recent analysis of research completed by the School of Business at Rutgers University showing that workaholics addiction might make it difficult or impossible for the workaholic to perform as an effective member of a team.

"Like many entrepreneurs, I believe in working hard. But simply throwing long hours at work can be inefficient. It leads to 'stay-in-seat mentality' where people will stay late out of compulsion, but not really be productive," says Your Last Name. "So by encouraging some time out of 'the seat,' it will actually help revive and refresh the business. I hope other organizations do the same."

July 7th – Sliced Bread is Sold for the 1st time (1928)

Idea: When sliced bread was introduced it was described as “the greatest forward step in the baking industry since bread was wrapped”.

Do you have an improvement to a product that makes it better than the original version? If so, today is a great day to show your clients how your product is “the greatest forward step in your industry since....”

July 7th – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

July Examples:

“A lot of parents pack up their troubles and send them off to summer camp” – Raymond Duncan

“While consumers will be in the malls this July, purchases will not be made but the air conditioning will be enjoyed”

“A perfect summer day is when the sun is shining, the breeze is blowing, the birds are singing and the lawn mower is broken”

July 8th - World's first supermarket opens in USA (1912)

Idea: When convenience really matters - share the difference between how things used to be compared to how they are now then compare to your offering and how much easier you will make things

Grabber: mini shopping cart, grocery receipt, savings coupon

July 8th - 1st Ice Cream Sundae Introduced (1881)

Idea: A $25,000 Sundae was introduced in 2008 (quite an inflation compared to 1881). This golden sundae is a blend of 28 cocoas, including 14 of the most expensive in the world. But wait - it's also infused with 5 grams of edible 23-karat gold and served in a glass goblet lined with a layer of edible gold.

At the base of the goblet is an 18-karat gold bracelet with 1 carat of white diamonds. The sundae is also topped with whipped cream covered with more gold and a side of La Madeline au Truffle from Knipschildt Chocolatier, which sells for $2,600 a pound.

It is eaten with a gold spoon decorated with white and chocolate-colored diamonds, which can also be taken home.

There is a real solid and profitable lesson here! Besides the fact that there ARE people who are buying this sundae – people will pay these prices for a bite to eat... besides the fact that this ingenuity will get you tens or hundred of thousands of dollars in free publicity... imagine the profits you experience with this technique!

And you DO NOT have to change your entire company. You don't even need to spend a lot of money to get started with this.

You need to think about how you can do and sell something so grand, and outrageously expensive in your industry, that it would immediately get people talking about how crazy you really are.

Having something that out-prices everything else by 4-10 TIMES will immediately stop them in their tracks and get them talking about you. The more people talk, the more you will attract into your sales funnel those who ARE buyers.

And, only logical, that the more real buyers you get at these high prices, the more your profits will start going through the roof.

Put some thought into this over the next couple weeks.

Put some thought into this - what bundle could you add at the high end that will 400% - or 1000% higher than anyone else in the market? Figure something out - write up a press release announcing it and send it out through some of the online newswires like <http://prnewswire.com/> or one of the other big ones.

This IS important because 20% of your customers will buy your higher end offers. Maybe 20% won't buy a $25,000 Sundae, but I will bet that you will be very pleasantly surprised with the number of orders you get for your new high end bundles.

© Troy White

When your prices are 400% higher than what you are used to, it doesn't take many orders to start seeing substantial revenue and profits gains!

July 26th - All or Nothing Day

Are you going to give it your all today or nothing? Considering it's the lazy days of July - you might want to enjoy and do nothing. But, that doesn't mean you still can't market nothing.

Idea: So how do you create a promotion out of nothing? Exactly that - send nothing. You could just have a blank post on your blog or send out an email with the subject line of "Hey, Nothing Is Going On".

Send it blank. You are sure to arouse some suspicions from your list on why you sent "nothing". They might wonder if you forgot to finish writing or something did not load properly. Just follow-up tomorrow with an explanation of your "nothing" email.

Or send out an email about "nothing" and tie it in with an offer. For example, with the purchase of a "Product A" they will receive "Product B" for free.

Dear Customer,

July 26 is all or nothing day and since I feel like doing nothing - I would like to share a little dialog with you from "Seinfeld" - it is of course a show about "nothing".

Jerry: You want to go with me to NBC?

George: Yeah. I think we really got something here.

George: An idea.

Jerry: What idea?

George: An idea for the show.

Jerry: I still don't know what the idea is!

George: It's about nothing!

Jerry: Right.

George: Everybody's doing something. We're do nothing!

Jerry: So, we go into NBC, we tell them we've got an idea for a show about nothing.

George: Exactly.

Jerry: They say, "What's your show about?" I say, "Nothing."

George: There you go.

Jerry (After a moment of pause): I think you may have something there

In honor of All or Nothing Day, I do believe I have something for nothing. Please click here to read more details....(insert your offer)

July 30th - Henry Ford's B-day

Ideas: Famous quotes from Ford "one color only - black", automating things that used to take too much time etc.

Grabber: toy antique car

August 1st - World Wide Web Anniversary (1990)

---

Idea: What would you do without the world wide web today? If you offer services on the web/e-books or have a website, this is a perfect time to send out a savings to your customer (perhaps 10% off your service or product).

Grabber: Of course, an e-card!

August 5th – Twin Festival Day

Idea: This is a great day to execute a Buy One Get One Free offer – also known as the BOGO model. This model encourages the customer to buy one item and get special terms on other items (such as discounted or free items). It is commonly used in grocery stores however is also being used in the digital world such as download a song and get a ringtone for free. The use of Buy/Get promotions is popular to influence users to consume more of the product they are using and to introduce new products to consumers.

When marketing a BOGO make it personalized to your market – if you are offering digital services – a consumer will not require 2 copies of the same e-book; however it is a good time to introduce a new e-book recommendation (you might want to recommend a few different e-books therefore not limiting their options).

You can easily use this day to offer your clients a BOGO offer. For example, just send out a simple email to your customers letting them know that today you are having a Buy One Get One Free offer.

Subject: The Hollywood Twin Trend

Dear Customer,

It seems with each passing day, another Hollywood star is announcing the conception or birth of twins. Fads are common in Tinseltown and it appears there is some competition to produce twin babies. From Julia Roberts to Angelina Jolie, twins are popping up everywhere. But, it really isn't a trend, just ask the town of Twinsburg, Ohio.

Last year, 2,037 sets of multiples descended into the town to celebrate Twins Day Festival and on August 1st, this year...the amount will increase.

Could this be the new place to be seen for Hollywood twin moms?

I don't know if I would double my bet, but in honor of this day, we are offering a Buy 1 and Get 1 Free....

Top 10 Lessons for Small Business Success As learned from my Twin 3 year olds by Troy White

Small business success is very similar to learning to walk, talk and spell. The basics have to be understood before moving on to the next step. I am blessed to have twin 3 year old girls in my life and am amazed constantly how much I learn from them on a daily basis. As I watch them run around and explore, I find myself realizing just how much my observations apply to being successful and happy in life and in business.

So take heart in the following tips – they may come from little people but they have the power of giants. To your happiness and your success !

1. No matter how small you are you can change lots of lives - your goal for starting your business should be to change lives in one way or another. Remember this in everything you do - how can I change my customers lives ?

(Relationship Version - No matter how small the issues are you can always improve your relationship! In every relationship, we come upon hurdles. Some of these hurdles are small while some are huge and are individual to your and your husband. Just remember to never give up and try to work these hurdles out together. )

2. Climb that wall - no matter how big the wall is - persistence pays off in the end. Never give up on your dreams and keep on trying.

(Relationship Version - Climb that wall – no matter how big the wall is – persistence pays off in the end. Never give up on your dreams as a couple. Keep on trying. Your dreams are unique to each other – it might be to buy that dream home, have children or move to an exotic country. Dream and work together to reach those goals.)

3. Times when you appear small and frail are when you can surprise everyone with your hidden strengths. Everyone in business pays attention to what the big boys are doing and how they became successful. What they miss though is the small businesses that quietly make substantial profits every year. These companies go about their business quietly and draw attention from the customers - not the competition.

(Relationship Version - Surprise each other with your hidden talents. At times, each of you will feel small and frail as life pushes you through different obstacles. Rely on each other's strengths and talents to help each other through life's never-ending challenges.)

4. Act like a silly goof whenever and wherever you want – people will never forget you - and that is what every business owner should dream of - sticking in everyone's mind.

(Relationship Version - Act like a silly goof. Whenever and wherever you want – express your love for each other. Don't care about what others are thinking as the two of you dance or run through the streets. Keep your relationship full of fun and ridiculous gestures.)

5. Remember to share – People can get very protective of what they learn and how they achieve success. When you have something of value that would benefit others – share ! IT will come back to you one hundred fold . You do have your rights also - protect what is not to be shared and make sure others know it is yours and yours only.

(Relationship Version - Remember to share. In each relationship, you have to give, take and share. From the materialist items to your most personal emotions, keep an open dialogue with your spouse to share all that you can as a couple.)

6. Run naked every once in a while. Well ok, you don't have to be naked but run – have fun, be free and try to be a kid again. Having kids gives you that chance again and it is incredible to relive the fun that you used to have – when you weren't so serious about life and business.

(Relationship Version - Run naked every once in awhile. Well, you don't have to run through the streets naked but take check of your sex life. As a couple, your sex life is the one thing that is yours exclusively. Don't let regular life such as stress and fatigue take over from enjoying the human contact you and your husband have dedicated to each other only.)

7. Lay back on the grass and watch the clouds go by whenever you have a chance. Reflection and relaxation can be one of the most powerful combinations that you can ask for in your personal and business success – use it !

(Relationship Version - Lay back on the grass and watch the clouds go by. Whenever you have a chance, go reflect and relax together. It is one of the most powerful combinations that you can use for your relationship. Pack up a picnic once and while or go to the park – just do it together and forget about the housework that has to be done or the presentation at work due on Monday.)

8. Put on a fancy hat - dress up for the day. Nothing can make you feel like a new person more than a complete change in clothing. Wear something you usually would not wear – or something you have always wanted to wear but were afraid to. In business this one little point can make you stand out from all of the rest. Wear a tacky tie, or a purple shirt, or a new hat every day – your customers will never forget you.

(Relationship Version - Put on a fancy hat. Don't forget to get dressed up and go out on the town for the night. Many couples find they are making a date night just because they are either stuck in a rut in the relationship of watching TV every night or working to late.)

9. Silence is not always a good thing. Usually it means something big is brewing and trouble is near. If you find too many of your competitors are quiet or your clients are quieter than usual – figure out why ! Something serious could be happening out there and you better find out what it is.

(Relationship Version - Silence is not always a good thing. If silence seems to be the communication level in your relationship, it usually means something big is brewing and trouble is near. Always talk through your problems, don't let things just go to the side to let it brew in each other's minds. Figure out the problem and fix it as soon as possible!)

10. Find some sand and let your toes dig in. Sand has an amazing soothing quality to it. If you do not have sand near your house or business – go buy a bag of sand at your local garden center and put it in a small box you can dip your feet in. Try this when you are working on a tough problem – new ideas will pop into your head in no time.

(Relationship Version - Take naps. Every once and awhile, just go lie down together and talk. Cuddle up to each other and celebrate in the love you have for each other. Fall asleep for an hour in each other arms and wake up to a new energy level together.)

August 8th – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

August Examples:

"If you think you're too small to have an impact try going to bed with a mosquito in the room."

"Ah, Summer, what power you have to make us suffer and like it" – Russel Baker

"In my retirement I go for a short swim at least once or twice every day. It's either that or buy a new golf ball." - Gene Perret

"The tans will fade, but the memories will last forever."

August 13th – National Underwear Day

In 1982, Calvin Klein introduced his underwear line for men, which turned the item into a fashionable item. It no longer was just a practical product but also one with sex appeal. Men such as Antonio Sabto Jr. and Mark Wahlberg bared their briefs through a series of ads for Calvin Klein.

This wasn't the first time that Calvin Klein decided to change advertising by pushing the envelope. In 1980, he featured a 15 year old Brooke Shields purring "Nothing comes between me and my Calvin's" in an ad. Klein has also been criticized for some of his debatable ads featuring ads with children 15 years old and younger. When questioned in 1995 regarding this outcry, Klein replied:

"These campaign ads are not pornographic. The ads were intended to convey the idea that glamour is an inner quality that can be found in regular people in an ordinary setting; it is not something that is exclusive to movie stars and models".

<http://AppData/Websites/membercalendar/images/markwahlberg.jpg> Regardless of his controversy, Klein has been referred to as a marketing genius and his underwear campaigns have become notorious and has made Calvin Klein underwear a twentieth century icon.

Can adding some sex appeal increase the effectiveness of your ad?

It is true it can attract the customer's attention however misuse of sex appeal can be costly and start brand boycotts and damage brand reputation.

Klein has produced ads which have cost him dearly. In 1999, when he launched an ad campaign for his children's underwear line he featured 2 ads, one with 2 little boys playing on a sofa only in CK underpants and another ad with 2 little girls doing the same. He ran full pages ads in the New York Post and a huge billboard in Manhattan's Times Square.

The public were outraged and the ads were pulled 24 hours later. The public felt the ads sexualized images of children.

If you are considering using sex appeal in your campaigns, make sure you know how your target market is going to react. Studies show that the attractiveness of an endorsing model provokes positive emotional responses but nudity and erotic content might get your customer's attention but it might be the wrong attention you are looking for. So, in essence, sex sells; however when used in good taste.

Adding some sexual appeal to your ad might increase the effectiveness of your ad but remember to be tasteful as your brand reputation is what yields the long-term results.

August 21 - Mona Lisa Stolen (1911)

Idea: Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa, one of the most famous paintings in the world, was stolen right off the wall of the Louvre (famous museum in Paris, France). It was such an inconceivable crime, that the Mona Lisa wasn't even noticed missing until the following day. The story of the caper was actually much simpler than many had theorized. It takes two years for the mystery to end with the return of the painting on December 30, 1913.

Grabber: Give your customers a mystery to figure out. Create a contest and send your customers clues to figure it out – you could carry out the contest until the end of the year and reveal the winner on December 30? It can be as simple as sending puzzle pieces and then having them put together the puzzle and returning the completed puzzle to you and having a random draw. The key is to engage your customers in wanting to figuring out your mystery and getting them actively participating in your promotion. (See September – Fall Premieres for another idea to tie in with this promotion).

August 25th – Banana Split Day

Idea: Please see June 8th for information on how you can use this day to market your service and/or products.

---

September – National Coupon Month

Idea: This one is pretty obvious. But – have fun with it. Send a coupon booklet with savings your customers can have year around. Do a year long coupon booklet with different savings for each month. For your slower months, make the savings attractive so you can generate some money for these times. Everyone loves a deal!

---

September - Fall premieres for Networks

Idea: Still stuck on what type of contest to have for the August 21st Mona Lisa promotion? Select one of the more popular TV shows and ask your clients to figure out what their theory is for the premiere.

September 3rd – eBay founded

Idea: Is it time that you start an eBay store? There are some great benefits with starting an eBay store – if you are a high-volume seller on eBay or are selling large quantities of the same or similar items, it might make sense to start up your own eBay store. With your eBay store you can list items that can run for months at a time (instead of doing the running auction that is usually seven or ten days). Your eBay store is essentially your virtual storefront of your items and is a great way to promote your products.

One of the biggest advantages of having a eBay storefront is that it gives your website a professional look if you currently don't have one, plus it gives you the credibility that you need to reach customers who are looking for a particular product or service on the web. Plus, an eBay storefront gives you the opportunity to reach thousands of people each day and increase the exposure to obtain more! You can find all the information you need on starting up an eBay store on the site itself (www.ebay.com).

September 9th – Bodacious Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

September Examples:

"If there were no schools to take children away from home part of the time, the insane asylums would be filled with mothers" – Edgar W. Howe

"Often when I am reading a good book, I stop and thank my teacher. That is, I used to, until she got an unlisted number" – Author Unknown

"Studying: take the S-T-U off and it's just dying"

September 22nd - Elephant Appreciation Day

---

Idea: Elephants are known for not forgetting. Has your customer forgot something lately – perhaps they forgot to renew their subscription with you or perhaps it's time for them to use a service you provide (haircut, car repair etc.). If so, use today to remind them.

Dear Customer:

They say an elephant never forgets. We know though that you probably have lots more going on than an elephant. Perhaps that's why you might have forgot that today is Elephant Appreciation Day!

And in honor of today, we would like to remind you that you forgot to renew, service etc.

Grabber: peanuts, toy elephants

September 23rd - 1st movie to become a TV series - How to Marry a Millionaire (1961)

---

Idea: Do you have a million different ways to help your customer? Send them a note letting them know that they don't need to "marry" a millionaire because you have solutions on how to make them millions or by using your product and/or service you can save them millions.

Grabber: A fake million dollar bill or check

National Pizza Month (October)

Who'd have thought that a pizza take out joint would have such savvy marketers?

I received a letter in the mail (not addressed to me personally, they had blanketed neighborhoods near them - hint).

On the front was a letter with a bag of flour attached to it with a staple.

The letter began... "Dear Neighbor, Why have I attached a little tiny bag of flour to this letter? Here is why:" and the letter then goes on to talk about their 'secret flour' the chemical structure of their flour, the high protein content, where they get their flour, and why they pay more for their flour than the competition does.

They do an excellent job building their pizza dough and ingredients up, and play down the inferior ingredients the competition uses, which explains why they have "limp, often soggy, pizza crust".

They talk about how theirs is hand made daily, in-house, while others farm it out to outside companies who mass produce a cheaper, lower quality dough that shows up ready.

Then they have a 100% guarantee: "if it's not the best you've ever eaten, we'll refund your purchase price. In fact, when you stop by in the next two weeks, I'd like you to have our signature Caesar salad with your dinner (my treat)"

Then they have a coupon at the bottom with the free Caesar salad and Focaccia bread.

This is brilliant.

And why can YOU use the exact same idea?

You can... excuses will not be tolerated here.

You may not have a pizza business... but your business IS NO DIFFERENT.

The stupidest excuse I hear out there is just that "my business is different. that stuff won't work for me. my clients are different. my suppliers are different. we sell based on price. whine. whine. whine."

You are completely WRONG if that is coming out of your mouth.

- * You have a product or service to sell.
- * You need buyers.
- * Your buyers need to understand what makes you different.
- * You need to prove to them you are worthy supplier and they should give you at least a try.

Sound familiar?

You can attach a bag with a component of your product. You can have a picture of you delivering the service. You can have a picture with a happy customer sharing their feedback. You can find SOMETHING that will make this strategy work for you.

I spoke with the guy who owns this pizza place (we have ordered from them a few times - as have all our friends when I told them about this offer). He won't share numbers...but he said it has done VERY WELL for them.

And it will for you too.

So, no more excuses. This works exceptionally well... especially when people are looking for good reasons to buy somewhere else (and it is NOT always about price - read the statistics - the affluent market spent 29% more in the last quarter than the previous).

THEY ARE BUYING... are you selling to them?

Use this simple model, and at least give it a try.

Something important I forgot to mention: The letter came BEFORE the brochure. Yes, they had a typical pizza brochure, but the letter was stapled to the front of it. Instead of "Oh, another pizza brochure", which is what 99% of people would have done, they said "what is this letter, with this bag attached? This looks interesting".

Goal #1 in your marketing is ALWAYS to get them reading or paying attention. Once you get them reading, your chance of a sale go up dramatically. Once you have their attention, it becomes much easier to get them to try you out, especially when you use ideas like this pizza parlor.

2nd Week of October – Mystery Series Week

Idea: Big retailers have been using mystery shoppers for years to find out what the experience is like for their customers? Do you know what your service experience is like at your company? During Mystery Series Week perhaps it's time you do. Marketing isn't just what you say or do but how and what you do. Here are a few things you should do this week:

- Send someone to ghost shop to see how your entire sales process is going
- Are your employees fixing problems? If so, give an incentive for them to do so.
- Are your employees telling you about problems that have happened? If so, reward them for doing so – sticking your head in the sand and pretending everything is running along tickity boo is NOT a business strategy.
- Do your employees share your passion for your business? If no, then why are you having them represent you?
- Make sure your customers are satisfied (create a customer survey) – do everything in your power to make sure they are satisfied – if you don't – they might end up telling everyone about the bad service they received.

October 10th – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

October Examples:

"October. This is one of the peculiarly dangerous months to speculate stocks in. The others are July, January, September, April, November, May, March, June, December, August and February" – Mark Twain

"If you haven't found something strange during the day, it hasn't been much of a day" – John A. Wheeler

The leaves fall patiently
Nothing remembers or grieves
The river takes to the sea
The yellow drift of leaves
- Sara Teasdale

October 16th - Boss's Day (National Bosses Day)

Idea: "There is only one boss. The customer. And he can fire everybody in the company from the chairman on down, simply by spending his money somewhere else."- Sam Walton.

Where is your customer spending their money? Recognize your customers this Bosses Day and let them know that they are "boss" of your company. This would be a great time to have your customers fill out a survey on how you can improve your service to them.

Or send your customers a letter telling them that you are giving them a raise! Offer your customers a product or service which will increase their earnings.

Grabber: Simple little gift or card

October 17th – Sweetest Day

Idea: Who knew? That it's not Halloween or Valentines day – it's the sweetest day that the candy industry sells 75% of their business during this holiday. Herbert Birch Kingston, a philanthropist and candy company employee wanted to bring happiness into the lives of orphans and others who were forgotten. With the help of friends, he began to distribute candy and small gifts to the underprivileged. The tradition caught on with movie star Ann Pennington presenting 2,200 Cleveland newspaper boys with boxes of candy to express gratitude for their service to the public. Another popular movie star, Theda Bara, distributed 10,000 boxes of candy to people in Cleveland hospitals and also gave candy to all who came to watch her film in a local theater.

Celebrate this unique holiday by sending your customer a letter letting them know how sweet it is to have them as your customer. Appreciation for the simple things in life and the little surprises is one of the trends that fuels this celebration.

Grabbers: It's all about sweetness...send candies, cakes or chocolates. You could also send your favorite desert recipe; alternatively write your letter on a recipe card.

October 23rd - Television Talk Show Host Day

Idea: It's time to give people a reason to start talking about you! Try creating a unique angle or a memorable service that will get people talking.

For example, movie theaters tapped into the market of new parents by offering the "Stars and Strollers" program. The Stars and Stroller program allows adult patrons and their babies or toddlers to enjoy movies in a baby-friendly environment. They don't have to worry about upsetting other guests with crying babies; show times include dimmed lighting allowing parents to see children clearly, lowered volume levels and stroller parking.

Well, guess what? Mother's started talking. The program was such a success that the theaters started offering evening times in addition to the regular weekly screenings so that both parents could attend and make a night out of it.

Local Business Owner Participates in “Make a Difference Day” on October 25

YOUR CITY, STATE – Today’s Date – Local business owner YOUR FULL NAME is contributing to Make a Difference Day on October 25 by WHAT YOU WILL BE DOING.

Since initiated in 1990, Make a Difference Day has become one of the world’s largest day of volunteering. More than three million Americans participated in it 2007.

“Besides the other charitable things NAME OF BUSINESS does throughout the year, I wanted to really make a statement about the importance of community to business,” says YOUR LAST NAME, “I challenge other business owners to participate in Make a Difference Day. It’s time to step up and take an active interest in the well-being of our community.”

Participation is simple: identify a need in your community, put together a team of co-workers and plan your project. You can also register the project on line to help publicize your project and recruit volunteers at <http://www.usaweekend.com/diffday>.

October 31st - Halloween

Idea: One of the biggest adult holidays and the 2nd biggest kid’s holiday of the year. Be prepared for this fun holiday!

Grabbers: Skeleton Cardboard Decorations, Grim Reapers, Hanging Jack-o-Lantern Decorations, Candy

Fellow _____,

As you can see, I've attached a Skeleton to the top of this letter. Why have I done this? Actually, there are two reasons:

1. I have something very important to tell you and I needed some way to make sure this letter would catch your attention.

2. And second, since what I'm writing about concerns skeletons in your closet.

Here's what it's all about:

You know as well as I do, your customers are the ones that pay your bills. So why do you hide that fact? Keeping things that important locked up in a closet, can be very dangerous to your long-term profitability.

Your customers NEED to know you care... and that you appreciate their business.

Yes, you probably said thanks when they bought... but have you been in touch with them since? You should be on a bi-weekly basis. They do want to hear from you, as long as you have something interesting to say!

Which brings me to the point of this letter and skeleton in the closet idea...

I want to HELP.

I have a simple new tool you can use to keep in touch with your clients more.

It will show them you care - and will bring them closer to you in the end (which means they will buy more from you on an ongoing basis).

Here is what you can now do:

National Novel Writing Month

What is the most profitable daily action you can take?

When it comes to marketing and growing a business, entrepreneurs tend to get stuck as to what they should be doing next to reach their yearly goals and objectives. They go from placing ads, to using coupon books, maybe some yellow page space, possibly even the odd mail out to people.

Which are all part of the marketing mix.

But, one of the most profitable daily things you can start doing is writing. No, you do not have to aim to write a book (although a book can be one of your greatest lead generation tools)... nor do you need to write a masterpiece.

Writing for 15 minutes a day (at minimum) will grow your business faster than you could ever imagine (especially if you have never used this technique before).

Things to write about:

Client case studies – their experiences with your company, your service, your products

Life – people love to hear about your personal life, dreams, goals, and ambitions. This does require you stepping out of your comfort zone (which is very good thing)... but you will immediately begin create a relationship with your clients that will last for many years to come.

Your staff – write about them, how much they help you, how much you appreciate them. Also try writing short articles from their perspective about working with you, about working direct with the clients, about their lives and experiences or dreams and ambitions.

Seriously, writing for 15 – 30 minutes a day will do amazing things to grow your income – and your expertise.

You will have to commit to this – as once a month is a waste of your time (although it is better than nothing).

How to use your writings:

- Newsletters
- Blogs
- Websites
- Booklets for lead generation
- Sales Letters
- Brochures
- Tip Sheets
- White Papers
- Use as audio cd
- Email follow ups
- Postcards
- Catalog copy
- Coaching program material
- Articles for on and offline

An easy way to get going if you find yourself stuck to start writing:

List out 3 of the topics you would like to write about on the top of the page. Set a timer for 5 minutes Press start on the timer. Without thinking about it, start writing using the 3 topics you wrote out – you must mention all 3 topics in the first paragraph Write for 5 minutes (even if it is rambling writing that makes no sense at first) When the timer goes off, stop writing

Do it again, or continue on from where you started for another 5 minutes... then another... then another
This helps break through a writers block – and it does work if you try it. Once you use this technique for a while it will be much easier to write without this method. 5 minute chunks keeps it simple.

(HINT: shut off phones and DO NOT check emails while doing these drills)

If you commit to doing this for the next 6 months, you WILL experience profound breakthroughs (and profits) in your business. It has happened to me – and it will for you too... guaranteed!

Thomas Smith wrote a guide called Successful Advertising in 1885.

Some of his most profound words then, which apply just as much today:

The first time people look at any given ad, they don't even see it.

The second time, they don't notice it.

The third time, they are aware that it is there.

The fourth time, they have a fleeting sense that they've seen it somewhere before.

The fifth time, they actually read the ad.

The sixth time they thumb their nose at it.

The seventh time, they start to get a little irritated with it.

The eighth time, they start to think, "Here's that confounded ad again."

The ninth time, they start to wonder if they're missing out on something.

The tenth time, they ask their friends and neighbors if they've tried it.

The eleventh time, they wonder how the company is paying for all these ads.

The twelfth time, they start to think that it must be a good product.

The thirteenth time, they start to feel the product has value.

The fourteenth time, they start to remember wanting a product exactly like this for a long time.

The fifteenth time, they start to yearn for it because they can't afford to buy it.

© Troy White

The sixteenth time, they accept the fact that they will buy it sometime in the future.
The seventeenth time, they make a note to buy the product.
The eighteenth time, they curse their poverty for not allowing them to buy this terrific product.
The nineteenth time, they count their money very carefully.
The twentieth time prospects see the ad, they buy what is offering.

Local Business Person Celebrates “World Communication Week”

YOUR CITY, STATE – Today’s Date – Face-to-face communication at the work place is declining rapidly. While tools like E-mail, telephone, instant message, and intranet score high on convenience and speed, they lack the warmth and emotion that face-to-face communication provides.

A local business owner is celebrating the “World Communication Week” (November 1-7) stressing the importance of face-to-face communication.

On November 1, Your Full Name, who owns and runs Name of Business in Name of City will launch a week-long “talk-in-person” campaign to encourage his/her employees to communicate face-to-face with co-workers, clients, family and friends.

“We email. We wiki. We blog. We IM. We convince ourselves that as long as we can write well, we can experience real communication through text alone. We are lost in digitality”, says Your Last Name.

“However, 55 per cent of meaning in an interaction comes from facial and body language and 38 per cent comes from vocal inflection. Only seven per cent of an interaction’s meaning is derived from the words themselves.”

Your Last Name also points to a Harvard Business School research project which has found that the more managers communicated electronically, the more pressing became the need for face-to-face meetings.

“Technology and supporting software are important to effective communications. In fact, they’re critical components. But they will never replace face-to-face communications,” he/she says.

November 3rd - National Sandwich Day

Idea: Take your client out to lunch.

People prefer to do business with people they like and there is no better way to get to know someone better than sharing a meal.

There is an opportunity everyday to share a meal with a prospect, client or associate – so try not to miss the opportunities! Make sure you go prepared and watch your business grow.

Grabber: Send a note to your customer to meet you at a specific deli. You could create just a simple note like this:

Would Love To Meet With You!

Come celebrate National Sandwich Day with me!

It's going to be a deli-cious time!

November 11th – Bodacious Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

November 11th's Bonza Bottler Day is even better than the others. It is the Bodacious Bonza Bottler Day (11/11/11) and you might want to make an even bigger offer to your clients – or even have a party to celebrate this Bonza Bottler Day.

November Examples:

"The problem with winter sports is that – follow me closely here – they generally take place in winter" – Dave Barry

"Snowflakes are one of nature's most fragile things but just look what they do when they stick together" – Verna M. Kelly

"Fallen leaves lying on the grass in the November sun bring more happiness than the daffodils" – Cyril Connolly

November 20th - McDonald's made its 50 billionth hamburger (1984)

Idea: According to Ray Kroc (founder of McDonald's) - "If you work just for money, you'll never make it, but if you love what you're doing and you always put the customer first, success will be yours." Use Ray Kroc's philosophy and let your customer's know that you are "lovin it"! Send your customers a letter letting them know how much you love what you do. Let them know that you put them first in your business. Other McDonald slogans include:

- What you want is what you get

- It's a good time for the great taste of McDonalds
- Nothing can do it like McDonald's
- You deserve a break today...at McDonald's
- We love to see you smile

Grabber: McDonald's coupons!

November 25th – Black Friday & November 28th - Cyber Monday

Idea: Black Friday is not an official holiday, but many employers give the day off, allowing consumers to get a head start on their Christmas shopping. Retailers are decorated weeks beforehand and many retailers in the US open at midnight on Thursday evening or very early (typically 5am) offering doorbuster deals! If you have an on-line website selling product – Cyber Monday is your day! Cyber Monday is the on-line version of Black Friday. The term, coined by retailer network Shop.org, refers to the day when many people log on at work to look for gifts they didn't manage to buy over the long Thanksgiving weekend. It has been seen as the start of the online holiday shopping season. So – make sure you have your website or store up & ready offering holiday specials.

Here are a few ways to motivate your visitors to buy:

- Use the first fold of your web site to build urgency -- and pack in the benefits for holiday shoppers!
- URGENCY BUILDERS: Another thing you could include in your first fold is a little "countdown" box that tells your visitors exactly how many days are left to Christmas, or to the shipping deadline for gifts to arrive in time
- AN OPT-IN OFFER that speaks to the needs of holiday shoppers. For example, you could put together a Holiday Buying Guide" that tells people more about your products and explains why they'd make great gifts.
- HOLIDAY SPECIALS AND DISCOUNTS: Make sure you offer some special deals on your products to entice your visitors to buy! How about an early-bird deal if your customers make a purchase before a certain date? Or a special discount for those panicky last-minute shoppers?
- You could offer a two-for-one deal, or even a "holiday gift set" that combines two or more of your products in a gift-ready package!
- YOUR SHIPPING INFORMATION: If you're able to offer free or discounted shipping, be sure to include some mention of it in the top fold of your site.
- PROVIDE AN IRONCLAD SHIPPING GUARANTEE so customers know their gifts will arrive in time. You'll want to put it where your customers can see it right away, at the top of your right- or left-hand sidebar.
- YOUR RETURN POLICY: Be sure to let your customers know you offer a no-questions-asked return policy for a certain period after the holidays. It'll give them the extra boost of confidence they need to make a purchase.
- FREE GIFT-WRAPPING SERVICE: It's another great way to give your customers an extra perk without much additional cost to you. For the cost of some paper and ribbon, you can make any humble package look like a fabulous holiday gift!
- Reduce your refund rate by offering gift certificates that let recipients choose their own present! Offer free or discounted shipping -- as well as guaranteed delivery dates for last-minute shoppers!
- Create an email promotion that solves your subscribers' holiday shopping problems and compels them to buy!

8 Steps To Maximizing Your Holiday Promotions

1) First thing you need to do is make them an offer they can't refuse. And the easiest way to do that is to bundle your products and services in new 'holiday packages' that are not available at any other time of the year.

Why? Because they are looking for a deal. A deal they can't find anywhere else - and it doesn't mean the cheapest price either... it means the most attractive offer.

Do you have multiple products and services?

Have you created an inventory of your products and services? Do it - right now... the results will amaze you.

List off every product, service, report, package, or incentive you have for your clients.

Then fit like-minded products together in a few different ways - have a Silver, Gold, and Platinum package arrangement ranging from inexpensive to medium ticket price to high end price tag.

For example, maybe you run a massage business.

You could offer a 60 minute massage, a book on at-home- stress-relief, an audio complete with soothing music, massage oil for at home use, and a couple nice candles to top it off.

Let's say you price this at $75 - which is the perfect price point for many lower end gifts - package it up nicely with gift certificates on nice paper, a basket, wrapped up professionally.

Your gold offer - monthly massages for 6 months, free spa products, the book as above - plus one more on creating your own spa at home, the candles and oil also included, plus a nice pair of slippers for lounging. Price tag - $500

Your platinum - 12 months worth of massages, all of the above, plus a facial and pedicure every other month (done by someone you subcontract with). This for $750.

This gives you 3 very nice packages that you can offer your clients... packages that are not available at any other time of the year.

Bundle them up real nice and have them wrapped up like a pro - and you will make a very attractive offer for your clients that are looking for simple gifts they can buy - right up to the husbands who will pay the big ticket price tag knowing that the gift they are giving their wife will be very much appreciated for the next 12 months.

2) Use some interesting numbers in your bundle and promotions. For example, why not have a year end bundle sale that saves them 20.08% off the purchase price?

You can have all the promotional material with the 20.08% OFF theme... it is different and stands out from everyone else (key right now)... and it incents them to buy the bundle, rather than the smaller packages.

3) Use some unusual cartoons and artwork for your holiday promotions. Last year, I used this Santa cartoon for my Wild West Christmas Bash and it was very well received (people LOVE a funny cartoon and you can get them done custom for you for under $50 at www.cashcartoons.com.)

4) Make sure people know you have holiday bundles and specials available on your website. Take your hints from Google and OrientalTrading. They switch up the holiday banners on the main pages regularly.

Have a fun graphic done with you in a Santa suit... or an elf outfit... or riding in a sled dropping presents... or, or, or. The CashCartoons.com team can do pretty well any type of cartoon you want.

Once you have them ready... use them everywhere. On the top banner of your website. In your emails. On your invoices and with stuffers that go with your invoices. On your business cards.

Even have some voice over work done for a Christmas greeting on your answering machine.

Now is the time to have some FUN!

One client I coach is chomping at the bit to roll out his holiday viral video contest idea I gave him. One that involves kids, clients, messes made by the kids... and some great laughs that is guaranteed to drive a ton of traffic to his site this season.

Video is perfect for this... all you need to do is find a video professional that can help you put it together in a short period of time.

5) Product launched out? Well, chances are your clients aren't. While most of us in the marketing world feel abused by all the launches out there... most people have no clue such a thing even exists. Find ways to tie in a weekly holiday gift launch. Or a daily special

Make sure they know that each product launch or bundle opportunity is only available for X amount of days. Anytime you can have a proper deadline (a real deadline and scarcity draw... unlike many others out there) you will immediately increase your response.

6) Offer existing customers a Platinum membership and upgrade... for free. Give them a gift for being a devoted customer and give them gifts, extra discounts, membership cards and benefits.

Everyone loves an unexpected gift... and they are much more likely to buy when they experience this.

7) Get promoting... NOW! Time is running out. How do you get the word out?

- Postcards - simple - easy - great way to drive traffic to your holiday bundle sales page.
- Direct mail - send them a simple letter to tell them what kind of special deals you have put together for them this year.

- Phone calls - call all the customers and prospects that you have their numbers.
- Personalized faxes to people who have bought from you before.

A Warning Though... if you are going through all this effort and work to improve your holiday sales - you had better make sure your message is done right.

- The web page sales pitch you use must convince them to buy.
- The sales copy you use must compel them to take action.
- The image you are portraying to your clients and prospects must show them you know what you are doing - and will treat them with the utmost of respect.

Some wording to be using in your promotions at this time of year:

|             |                     |               |
|-------------|---------------------|---------------|
| Gathering   | Nutcracker          | Bethlehem     |
| Harvest     | Sleigh              | North Pole    |
| Christmas   | Candy Canes         | Resolutions   |
| Decorations | Blessings           | Family        |
| Festival    | Peace               | Feast         |
| Holiday     | Hope                | Jingle Bells  |
| Cheers      | Joy                 | Reindeer      |
| Happy       | Stockings Mistletoe | Hug           |
| Greetings   | Nativity            | Kiss          |
| Gifts       | Sweetest            | Love          |
| Ribbon      | Reindeer            | Rudolph       |
| Surprises   | Old-Fashion         | Feliz Navidad |
| Ornaments   | Yule                | Jolly         |
| Gifts       | Elves               | Worship       |
| Wreath      | Celebrate           | Dance         |
| Ho Ho Ho    | Homecoming          |               |
| Snowman     |                     |               |

8) Don't be timid about the language you use. We are becoming way too politically correct with our wording around the holidays.

I heard the other day they are now thinking of changing Halloween to "Orange and Black Day" (maybe this is a Canadian thing... or maybe it has spread to other countries).

People are scared to say Merry Christmas now... because this "politeness" (I have another word for it) has gone too far.

Don't be scared about enjoying your holidays and making sure EVERYONE knows you do.

You will attract the right kinds of buyers... and get rid of those who are too easily offended by traditions that have spanned generations... even centuries and millennia.

Trying to appeal to everyone is the worst thing you can do.

Be yourself this holiday season in your promotions... have some fun... be unusual... and give them some good reasons to buy from you.

December 6th – First Taxi Cabs in London (1897)

Idea: December is a month of many parties and as such the consumption of alcohol. It's a good time to remind your clients that you care about their safety and not to drink and drive. Taxi cabs were introduced for a reason and you could offer your clients a taxicab voucher for them to use throughout the xmas season (you would need to set a budget and contact your local taxi cab company to see if it is possible for them to issue a $5.00 coupon for taxi use).

Another idea, would be to set aside a few nights and tell your customer that you will come pick them up as sometimes getting a taxi during this month can be quite difficult. A great time for you to have your customer's attention (well – depending on how much they have drank).

Grabber: Taxi Cab Vouchers

December 9th – 1st Christmas Card Sent

Have you send out your Christmas cards to your customers yet? If not, make it a priority today. Sending Christmas cards are not only a tradition but let's your customer's know that they are important to you. It also helps you further establish a relationship with them.

---

December 12th – Bonza Bottler Day

Idea: Please see January 1st for further explanation of Bonza Bottler Day.

The Bonza Bottler Day gives you an opportunity every month to reach out to your customers. You can simply send out a Happy Bonza Bottler Day email or send out a note/postcard specific to that month using a humorous/inspirational quote and add in a monthly Bonza Bottler Special.

December Examples:

"If you ever have to steal money from your kid, and later on he discovers it's gone, I think a good thing to do is to blame it on Santa Claus" – Jack Handy

"Santa Claus has the right idea: visit people once a year" – Victor Borge

"How did it get so late so soon? Its night before its afternoon. December is here before its June. My goodness how the time has flewn. How did it get so late so soon?" – Dr. Seuss

May you have the gladness of Christmas which is hope;
The spirit of Christmas which is peace;
The heart of Christmas which is love.

THE TOOL KIT

Let's start with getting some important tools together to start your path of idea generation. This kit contains tools that are critical to discovering your future profit powerhouse.

- A NOTEBOOK! Any kind will do. But, keep it personal and yours. A notebook will work fine but perhaps a funky journal from a bookstore is more your style. This notebook is now your best friend. It goes everywhere with you! It replaces your purse or your briefcase. It will end up holding the most powerful information inside of it. Something so simple can have so much power if it is used properly !
- A PEN! Not just any ordinary pen but a pen you are comfortable writing with and one that sparks you to want to write.
- POST-IT NOTES! If your notebook is not handy – you need to keep those ideas before you forget them. Keep yourself armed with post-it notes around you constantly.
- DIFFERENT COLORED PENS, FELTS & CRAYONS! When was the last time you wrote with a crayon? Try it again – you will be amazed at how such a simple tool can make your ideas flow much easier.
- CONSTRUCTION PAPER OR A SCRAPBOOK! Flipping through a magazine and something catches your eye? Use it. You never know when this idea might generate yours. Glue it to the paper or throw it into a scrapbook.
- AN ALARM CLOCK! This is so you don't focus on time during some of the exercises. Whenever time amounts are specified for activities or exercises, set your clock so you don't waste time worrying about the time.
- DESIRE TO MAKE A CHANGE IN YOUR LIFE ! Perhaps the most important tool in your kit is desire. This one quality will take you to new heights and will guarantee you success in business and in life. Find it, keep it and nourish it – the power of desire can overcome almost anything !

NOTE: A very sad fact on the internet is that less than 20% of the people that purchase books on how to make money actually use the information. Please use the information here, come up with some ideas for your publishing business and get going – TODAY ! I do not want you to be one of the 80% that never use the information. So I am here to help – if at any point in this course you want clarification or help, please email me at troy@smallbusinesscopywriter.com

ASSESSING YOUR SITUATION

What things in your current life situation do you not like? If you could change one thing, what would it be? Chances are that you do have something you want to change about your life – otherwise you probably wouldn't be reading this. What if each one of us changed something in our life to improve it – or to make ourselves happier – wouldn't the world be a better place?

What are your reasons?

Money

Early Retirement

Time for hobbies

Time for family and friends

Time to read

Security for your future

Time to travel

Write down these reasons on a piece of paper or 3 x 5 cards and place it where you can see it at all times. It is your motivator. It is what is going to drive you to your success. Once you commit things to paper it seems to flip a switch inside of you and things start to happen. And not only write down the reasons but write down what each reason means to you – you want more money - why ? Maybe for a newer car, house, holidays ? Write them down and be specific with numbers or fixed dates to push you along.

(Eg – I will spend 15 hours per week more with my family. I will pay off all outstanding credit card debt within 60 days. I will have my start up business running within 60 days from now. )

Warm Ups

There are a number of phases you will have to go through to find your million dollar ideas, the first of which is the warm up. This consists of exercises designed to help you clear your mind and find the right state that you need to be in to begin your mental workout. These warm-up activities should become habitual daily activities. Everyday try to make the time to do these activities. If you can't seem to find the time for all activities at least try to incorporate one of these activities daily.

- WRITE! Write for the next 11 days, every day for 10-20 minutes in your notebook. Sit down and write about anything – even if it is something like “this exercise is dumb, my pen is not working right, my hand hurts, boy I wish it was the weekend then I can go do...” and so on. It doesn't matter what you write about, only that you write.

This helps clear your mind of all those daily things our mind gets trapped into. Try it and stick with it for at least the 11 days – I dare you! See what happens. Now this is a longer-term exercise that you need to keep up even if you find your great product idea right away. Writing will help keep your mind clear and focused. You might find that you never stop this.

This is an exercise that will change your life if you do it – please give it a chance ! There is an immense amount of insight within you waiting to come out and be heard. Your writing will help you find new product ideas and partnerships to follow, solutions to on-going issues you have, easy answers to questions and so on. The following exercises contain writing exercises so please start to write – like it or not ☺ If you want to succeed in life try this – guarantee it will bring you much closer than you are today.

- FOCUS! Write down a question or concern in your notebook. Set the alarm clock for 3 minutes. Close your eyes and concentrate on this for 3 minutes. The question can be anything such as:
  - a. What subject do I want to produce a guide on?
  - b. Where can I help others the most?
  - c. What skills do I have that are valuable to others?
  - d. What career path should I follow?
  - e. Why is the sky blue?
  - f. What type of business could I start and be successful in?
  - g. Where would my talents be of the most use to others?

Write down all those thoughts about that question in your notebook once finished. Don't do anything with it right now – just keep writing in your notebook.
- DAYDREAM! Go to your favourite place (a coffee shop, your bedroom). Do not take anything to read but do take your journal to write anything down that comes to mind. Just hang out and think for at least 10 - 20 minutes. Imagine what your life would be like if...Picture it, live it in your mind – how does it feel?
- DRAW! Use those crayons from your tool kit! Buy a colouring book if that helps or just draw, doodle, colour, write out your grocery list – anything. Just make sure you use your crayons.
- LISTEN! Music is very powerful – close your eyes while you are listening. Listen to your favourite song with the volume turned up (to help the brain's juices flow). Listen to some of your favourite music – and listen loud! If needed, use headphones to keep the neighbours at bay, but loud music can get those brain juices flowing. Then pick some music you never listen to – if you usually like rock and roll, listen to classical or jazz or country. Classical music has been proven time and time again to improve blood flow to the brain and greatly improve your thought process.
- TIME! Watch the alarm clock from your kit. Get comfortable and watch the second hand go around for 2 – 3 minutes. Try to quiet your mind by counting one-one thousand, two-one thousand, etc. Notice how slowly the second hand moves when you are in deep concentration. This is tough to do but is very helpful with focus. Practice this daily.
- TOUCH! Clasp your hand together in front of you with fingers interlocking. Notice which thumb is on top. Now re-clasp your hands with the other thumb on top. Focus on this task. This is a small exercise that shows how change can be difficult to accept at first but is much easier with practice.

BRAIN BOOSTER TIPS

- Eat foods containing barley and/or high concentrate carbohydrates – proven to build up memory and increase brain blood flow – critical for proper creativity and brainstorming attitudes.

- Get some exercise! I am not going to go into all the physiological benefits of exercise – you know it so just get out there and do it – go for a walk, run, power walk or even just sit around outside- that fresh air can do wonders. Start slow and build up to a good pace. When that blood gets flowing and your heart starts beating faster you will be amazed at the thoughts and ideas that start popping up in your mind.
- Get some relaxation or meditation music to sooth and clear your mind. With technology now it is easy to find this music and download it for free or next to free. Indulge in your favourite pastimes. Go walking, running; go to restaurants, cafes, coffee shops, pubs, the gym, play music, listen to music, paint, draw, sculpt, read, etc... The list can go on but it is up to you to write down everything that interests you.
- Use your lunch hours and after hours. Take your notebook with you to work – or, if it is too noticeable, go to the dollar store and buy a smaller notebook that will fit in your pocket. Always keep it with you to write down ideas and insights.
- Always keep thinking about this question “How can I _____?” This is where you need to go back to your list of things you want to have in your life.

I have a basic formula I use to create and evaluate new ideas. This is the exact formula I used to build a list of 300 ideas in no time at all. This is what I recommend but I also think that some people have their own system they prefer – if it works – do it.

The 5 Step Profitable Idea Kit – EIDOP (sounds like eye drop)

Step 1 – Explore – Gather information about everything. The exercises you will find in here will help you analyze areas of your life that you should focus on for your information products. Lets say you decide you collect stamps as a hobby and you have decided to write an ebook on this subject. Start researching the market – online, offline, library, stores etc. Collect as much information as you can find. I would recommend listing off right away the exercises that you like the most – write down your answers to them immediately upon reading them. Then do the ones you don't like the sounds of – because they are probably the ones that will work the best for you !

Step 2 – Imagination – Generate a ton of ideas with the use of creativity and brainstorming techniques outlined here. Try and get your mind used to blurting out ideas without criticism. And keep on blurting until you can blurt no more. Do not pick any ideas – just keep writing them down

Step 3 – Devise – Select an idea through using your common sense, your research and further brainstorming and narrowing ideas here. Figure out which markets will pay for your information. Who are the experts in this field, what is lacking for information with this idea.

Step 4 – Optimize – Improve the idea by testing in the different means listed in the Marketing section. You need to test to find out what works best and what else you can change or add to your offering to make it 10 times better than anything else out there.

Step 5 – Perseverance – Never give up on your vision and your dream. There will be rough times – guaranteed! Show me something in life that does not have a bumpy path to achievement. But the key here is to keep testing different methods until you find some that work. And there is a million different tools available to you for free or inexpensive testing. Lots of them are listed in the resource guide at the end and there is many others I will be recommending to you over time via email.

So here you have a system that is proven, tested tried and true. Use it in your discovery and you will easily create 300 profitable ideas in 11 days. The key now thought is to get started with your discovery and do not look back. Remember, if there is ever anything you want clarification or help with to email me at troy@smallbusinesscopywriter.com or call me toll free at 403-259-4566.

STAYING FOCUSED

Staying focused on the project at hand can be hard. This is one of the biggest issues that I have always struggled with myself. I am an ideas-person so I always have way too many ideas floating around in my head. And that leads me to get on a tangent on one, two or three ideas at once, which in effect means I am not giving any one idea the focus it requires. So what can you do to stay focused on ideas and projects? Here are a few things that have worked for myself:

- Get a day timer – they cost as little as $10.00 for a decent one – one that shows a week at a time with room on each day to write things down. This lets you plan a week out easily and see at quick glance what you need to get done.
- Turn those dreams and objectives into to-do items and deadlines to move forward. Put these dates in your day timer. Make sure that these are realistic though – do not tell yourself that you will write a book and have it published within 2 weeks if you have never done it before. Say it will take 6 months to write and publish. But you need to start writing – give yourself 2 weeks to have 20 pages – 1.5 pages a day. Break it down to smaller chunks to be more manageable and feasible.
- Form a “Mastermind group”. Napoleon Hill, author of the multi-million copy bestseller "Think & Grow Rich" emphasises that this is one of the most important steps that can be taken to achieving your dreams. This group ideally has 4 or more people (remember though that you can start with 2 people and build from there) that can help you with ideas to move you towards your dream life. And a variety of personalities and backgrounds can be good also so don't worry that people all have to be the same or they won't get along. There is more electrical energy in the air when you have a group of unlike minds brainstorming rather than a group of like minds. Why? Because unlike minds see different aspects of the project and these differences when brought to light can bring up new ideas or creations. Start with one or two people and grow your group and quickly as you can manage it. Try to meet once a week or every other week if possible. So start thinking about people you know (or would like to know) that would be a good addition to your mastermind group. Approach them with the proposal and be prepared to some trade some ideas for their time. For example if one person is also looking to make a change in their life – offer to be a part of their mastermind group. Or if another person has a small company they run – offer to help with brainstorming new ideas for promotion for their company.

** NOTE: On the internet, you are going to hear of Joint Ventures and how they can make or break your publishing business. Joint Ventures are arrangements between 2 publishers to self promote each others products for profit and or recognition. The Master mind group you form at the start can be your eventual JV. If you all get together to discuss ideas and how to get them up and running quickly, you can all profit at the same time. So think about one person you know who wants to start their own business – call them and start talking about regular meetings. Do it ! But make sure right from the start you agree that you are getting together to help each other start their own business not as a partnership in the same business. Partnerships can be dangerous to a friendship so go it alone.

There is an absolute ton of things you can do to wake up your mind, jump start your inborn creativity and find out who is lurking inside your docile mind just waiting to jump out.

Read through each idea spark and note which ones you would like to start with. Then note which ones you do not want to do. Both will be helpful – the ones you agree with and the ones you disagree with.

As you go through this process you will find some things that work better for you. Notice which triggers work best for creativity and idea generation – maybe it is smells, sounds, water, walks etc. And write down any triggers that work especially well for you. Here is a quick list for you to keep in mind for idea triggers and creativity generating environments:

- While doing anything repetitive – painting, colouring, manual labour etc
- Listening in on a speech or sermon
- While out for a walk or run
- Intense exercise – aerobics, biking, martial arts etc
- While reading a novel
- Upon waking up in the middle of the night
- Driving in your car
- Relaxing
- While in a meeting
- Meditating
- Showering
- Note which other ones work great for you !

The key is that you have to do it. Stop thinking about it, stop talking about it, stop reading RIGHT NOW – and go do step one!

PLAYTIME PASSION - STEP ONE

Remember when you were a child? Remember the things that you enjoyed and that consumed your days and nights? Sometimes these things are easy to remember and other times a little reminder helps out.

The following list contains things you may have done when you were a child and may still do. Look through the list and make notes on which ones stand out for you – both for the good memories and the bad memories.

When you look through this list you will find that some things will make you feel different. Maybe you cannot put your finger on what feels different just something does. Listen up ! When your body tells you something like that please take note and write down which item made you feel that way – make a note that your stomach turned or your heart fluttered or you got gas and the cat passed out or.

Your past interests can be an amazing tool to find your true passions in life today. Unfortunately we tend to forget about the things that were so important to us in the past because we get wrapped up in our busy lives. Look at the list and remember what you can about each item. The ones that give you that feeling inside are the ones you want to pay attention to.

One of life's biggest disappointments is how quickly we encourage kids to grow up and act like an adult. How far has that advice gotten you ? Are you happier as an adult than you were as a kid ? Most of society would love to go back and enjoy the simple pleasures in life and get back some of that freedom we gave up as we got older.

kids live

every day is one of the simplest exercises you can do to improve your life and the way you look at problems and issues. Bringing that zest for life into your own business will make your company stand out from the crowd and attract as much success as you dream for. Look at those people that took the plunge, started their own company, absolutely loved what they were doing and went on to make statements like “I never worked a day in my life since I became my own boss – it is too much fun to be work !”

There are many different ideas here waiting to happen.

If you have a hobby that is related to one of the above activities – you are on to something – write it down !

Information Ideas

101 ways to make money from your art

Secrets of baking success

Butterfly hot spots around the world

Training your old cat new tricks

Money making Kite Ideas

Mysterious Money from Magic

Travelling for dollars

How to travel the world on $1,000

10 steps to Science success – Teaching your kid the basics

CREATIVITY EXERCISES:

- Go to the best candy store around and splurge on yourself – buy a Pez dispenser, liquorice, swizzlers – have fun – remember what it was like when you were a kid? What was your favourite thing to do as a kid ?
- If you could be a Superhero which one would you be? Or would you create your own? What is the outfit like? Special powers? Write it down.
- Listen to the questions that kids ask – they are experts at creativity and honesty. Watch them play and learn – they are masters of excitement, focus and imagination – try to copy some of their traits and use them in every day life.

- Buy some water based finger paints – get a friend or two together with some large sheets of brown paper – or a white table cloth – and have some fun – pretend you are 5 years old – what would you paint?!
- Pretend you are 2 or 3 years old – ask why to everything you see. Why is the sky blue? Why is it raining? Why ? Now ask these why questions about all businesses that you have been interested in the past. (Ex. Why do coffee shops all have a similar set-up ? Why don't coffee shops have more music ? Or more social activities ?)
- Do something totally out of character – with friends or with strangers – it doesn't matter.

Product Promo Tip

If you have an existing company and are looking for new ways to promote or advertise – pay attention to the above list ! There is over 160 different ideas there that may help. Think about it – you are looking for ideas for your custom gift baskets and you start looking through this list for ideas. Maybe have art classes for free where people can decorate their own gift baskets. Or maybe you start doing gift baskets for kids birthdays – consisting of toy trains, bubble machines and books. Or what about bug collecting gift baskets with nets and jars and magnifying glasses etc. Or a friend is going away on a trip somewhere you could build gift baskets for the travelers with film for their camera, first aid kits, waterproof pouches, money belts etc. There are lots of ideas out there if you put your mind to it and try some new things. If you look around at society and small business – the problem as a whole is that everyone expects wonderful things to happen in their personal and business lives but they never do anything to get there. Back to the saying – “if you keep doing the same things day after day you can not expect the results to be any different“

CREATIVITY EXERCISES

- Go to the zoo. Watch children's faces as they light up with delight when seeing a tiger for the first time. Or think about the animals. Just what are they thinking ? What about animals do you enjoy the most (companionship, safety, comfort etc) ?
- Go for a walk anywhere, new or old. Try and get into the habit of walking once a day or once very other day. Walking is one of the most powerful idea generation techniques out there – so bring your notebook !
- Ask yourself – “What would I do if there was a cash reward of $100,000 for solving this problem within the next 2 days?” “Or what if there was a cash reward of $100,000 to you if you come up with a creative business concept in the next 2 days ?”
- Invent something – look in your junk drawers – find a couple items that stand out – find a way to make them work with each other or work in a new way or for a new use.
- Rent your favourite funniest movies and laugh, laugh, laugh!
- Close your eyes and imagine yourself being able to actually massage your stress points in your mind. When you first close your eyes, concentrate on your breathing – feel the breath go in and go out. Concentrate on this until you feel some of the tension come out. Feel the tense spots and pressure points? Lightly mentally massage out the tension – feel the difference it can make.
- Create a collage – get out some construction paper, scissors and tape or glue. Find some old magazines and newspapers and start cutting out headlines and pictures that sum up your goals, motivations, dreams and aspirations. Find a headline that really stands out to you as a statement and put it right in the centre of your collage. Try this ! It is fun getting dirty and being a little crazy with some scissors and glue ☺ Here is an idea with this “Cash from your Collages”. Sound crazy ? Have you been to a scrap booking store lately ? They are popping up everywhere and they are selling products like hot cakes !

- Go to your local dollar store– take $10 with you and buy some Hot Wheels or Barbies or other toys that you used to play with when you were a kid. What information is needed by people that collect these ? Look at all the Beanie Baby collectors guides out there now – somebody is making some serious money !
- Go back to the basics. Read about famous people from the past and how they became famous – Einstein, Edison, Mozart, Davinci etc. They all have amazing stories and each of us could learn immensely from them. How does what they went through apply to your life? Could you change things like they did? One of the best authors writing about these techniques is Michael J Gelb who recently wrote Discover your Genius.
- If you are not a puzzle or crossword person – start working on them in the paper – or if you are a crossword person – try brain twister exercises.
- Get a dictionary or thesaurus out – close your eyes and put your finger on a word on any page – look at the word and think/write down how it applies to your problem or project –compare and contrast. (eg – I picked far out of the dictionary – I think about it and I think – I am far away from a beach but if I keep working hard on my problem I will be on a beach in 2 months on a 2 week holiday. Also if I look back in time I have come a far ways from where I was 2 years ago for happiness and fulfillment). Product Idea – Far Away Fortunes – Stories of Success from Overseas
- With the same thesaurus, sit down and pick out 10 words out of the thesaurus that describe you. Write them down and then expand on why you think those words describe you. Write down everything you want. Do not hold back or feel guilty about wanting things. Write down everything you want in love, relationships, business, spiritual, financial, recreational, personal growth, material goods. Remember that this is helpful to cleanse yourself and get these wants down on paper. Write down the little secrets that you have always dreamed of.
- Find a place with a fireplace and hang out with a coffee, drink and think. Write down what you enjoy about coffee houses or what you don't like about them.
- Try a new sports activity – roller blade, ski, run, walk, lift weights, try martial arts etc – most have trials at no cost – good way to see what else is out there. What is hard to find ? Information for the beginner on ?
** Product Idea – How you too can make $100k/year in the sports industry. Interview successful sales and marketing people in the sports business and find out what makes them so successful. ****
- Have a show and tell party with your friends and/or your mastermind group. Remember these from school ? Time to show off your prize possessions or ideas. Plan ahead with your group and each person gets 5 minutes to show off what they are passionate about.

- Go to a pet store and look around. Picture things from a fish's perspective, or a cat's perspective or a dog's, etc. What would they like to see, smell, taste ?
- Learn the art of Mind Mapping (there is some great books out there – notably by Tony Buzan who termed this process Mind Mapping) as it can help you generate tons of good ideas as well as helps you focus on your to-do lists and find quick ways to get things done. This is a subject that deserves a entire book in itself to educate yourself on. For now I will provide you with a simple example which you can experiment with. The best process to use is:
  1. Start in the centre with your problem or goal
  2. Every idea that comes to you based on the problem – write it down around your center question – just start thinking of everything related to your problem or question
  3. Start looking at all of the ideas and do the same for each one. . Work on the free thought process for 2-5 minutes and see what you come up with.
  4. Use different colours, arrow types, drawings, text type etc. The point is to get your mind flowing and working on all kinds of different ideas and associations. When you are completed the free thought flow look at what you have put down and see what words relate to each other or compliment each other and connect them with new lines.
  5. Look at the entire mind map you have drawn and try to pick out the top 3-5 main points or concepts that came up.
  6. Try this again with the 3-5 main points. Lets say based on the following map (which should be expanded upon before completion) that you choose a kids furniture business and a home delivery business as a couple main points. Put these as your central points on a new map and start over.
- Go to a museum – one of the most under utilized tools for relaxation, idea generation and creativity building. Take your notebook and write down what catches your eye or interest.
- “I wish it was easier to get _____? This sentence can help you find a number of ideal businesses for yourself. Number one, it tells you something about your interests and passions; you are the one that finds an issue with it. And if you have a problem with it chances are that there are thousands of people out there with the same problem.
- Ask yourself one of those important questions – then open up a magazine or book that catches your eye. Randomly pick a page and then read the first sentence that stands out to you. How does it relate to your search?
- Stop reading – anything! -for a few days. If you are like me this is tough to do – I love to read! But I also found that this helps clear your mind and refocuses you on your goal – to live your dream life!
- Be silly for a day about anything and everything.
- Get a drastic haircut or colour – it grows back and it can be coloured back.
- Wear something incredibly tacky or something you would not usually wear. Whenever I am in need of some new ideas I throw on my ugliest Hawaiian shirts (this one almost makes you blind) and a funny thing happens – my mind starts whirling.

EXCELLENT BRAINSTORMING TECHNIQUE

Get yourself some post it notes, some pens, some large blank sheets of construction paper or use a 8 x 11 sheet of paper.

Step 1 - Write down on a post it your goal for brainstorming (eg – an idea for a part time business I can start). Put this post it in the centre of the table.

Step 2 - Now start writing (one idea per post it) the first things that come to mind (eg – helping elders, writing a book, coffee delivery, home parties, etc – keep going until you run out of ideas. Have these all spread out around your main question from step 1

Step 3 – Have numbers written on each post it with an idea 1, 2, 3, up to as many ideas as you have. Now do the same with small slips of paper so there is as many as there is ideas. So you have 14 ideas and 14 slips of paper with the numbers written on them.

Step 4 – Put the slips of paper in a hat or box or cup – whatever works for you – pick out 4 slips. Now pick each idea whose corresponds with the slip of paper (so you picked number 7 and idea # 7 was photo scrap booking sales as an example).

Step 5 – Put each of the 4 ideas on the corners of the construction paper or other paper you are using – they key is to have an idea on each corner and blank space in the middle.

Step 6 – Look at each of the 4 pieces of paper on the corners and write down the first things that come to mind on the blank space in the middle.

Step 7 – with a new pen colour start brainstorming combinations of the 4 ideas and write the combinations in the centre of the paper.

Also factor in the items you listed when you first looked at the 4 main ideas. Lets say we had the following 4 ideas on the corners:

Pet day care and walking service

Selling health products door to door

Custom sign design and printing

Now we start brainstorming and we get some of the following (some far out) ideas

Pet Scrap booking

Holistic products for pets

Pet memorials

© Troy White

Signs built for pet owners

Signs with picture collages as the focus

Selling picture collages as celebrations or pets lives

Lawn signs with pets as characters – birthdays, anniversaries etc

How to guide on being healthy and wealthy with a holistic pet business

Specialty pet gift baskets

Pet product of the month club

Step 8 – now you have a list of off the wall business ideas. What I like to do is pick 4 more slips out and put 4 more ideas on the corners (overtop of the previous 4) and do this again with the new ideas but use the same paper with the business ideas generated from above. So add to this list again.

Step 9 – Now you may be running out of ideas or you can keep going to build your list. At this point you can also start combining the business ideas from step 7 and 8 into new and improved business ideas. For an example – “Pet product of the month club sold as a gift basket arrangement for pet birthdays”.

Step 10 – Walk away for an hour or two ! That's right, forget about this and go do something else and let your subconscious mind do some work on this.

Step 11 – Go back to your list of business ideas. What does your stomach or heart tell you to do ? Listen to yourself here ! Your subconscious will have figured out which ideas have the most potential for yourself and now listen to your internal voice to tell you which ones are best.

Remember that there is no such thing as bad ideas – only ideas with potential ! Everything requires some work in this world – try and make it fun work though – only go after the things that bring fun or joy into your life. Each one of my crazy ideas listed has potential as an information product. Don't believe me ?

MEDIA CHECKLIST

Please find below a checklist for getting you recognized by the media when you send out a press release:

Part 1 - Getting the release ready.

- € Download the fill-in-the-blank press release expressly created for this program.
- € Fill in the release with your information anywhere you see highlighted areas. Be sure to remove all the highlighted areas, as well as the credit information, after you are finished!

Part 2 - Who to send it to (local).

- € Focus on local, first.
- € Other ways to find the right reporter and right publication.
  - You can also find great contacts by using the newspapers, magazines, etc., you may already have. Simply look for reporters who are covering your press release topic and take down their contact details.
  - You can also use online directories to search for other outlets. A great one is http://dir.yahoo.com/News\_and\_Media/
  - Let your fingers do the walking by using the phonebook to find other media outlets
- € Call to confirm all contacts. Ask how they want to get your release: email, fax, snail-mail.
- € Send out release to each reporter as they prefer.

Part 3 - Who to send it to (national).

- € Research media outlets online which appeal to your target market. Use the same system outlined above to find out the right contacts.
- € Use release posting websites. These are great for search engine optimization, and driving others to your website. But please remember, they often don't lead to any media coverage.
  - Here's a list of sites to post:
    - www.prleap.com
    - www.prweb.com
    - www.addpr.com
    - www.express-press-release.com
    - www.free-press-release.com
    - www.openpr.com
    - www.press-base.com
    - www.press411.com
    - www.pressreleasespider.com
    - www.i-newswire.com
  - A note on PR Web. I highly recommend this one. Although you will have to pay for the service, if you really want to make a splash to increase your search engine rankings, this is the one!

Part 4 - Following up with reporters.

- € Choose which media outlets are important to you - the places you really want the release to appear in.
- € Call and ask for the reporter.
- € First, introduce yourself and ask if they have time to talk.
  - If yes, then go to next step
  - If no, then find out when would be a good time to call back. (Then do so!)
- € Do NOT tell the reporter you are following up on a press release. Instead say:

*I have some additional information that I left out of the release I sent you about...
(fill in with topic)*

At this point the reporter will say to continue or that they don't recall the release.

If it's to continue, say the following:

Did you know that (add additional info here). Do you think this would make an interesting local story?

Or say:

Since announcing I am doing XX, many people, especially others in my field, asking me how I XX. I think it's something that your readers would be interested in, too. Do you agree?

If the reporter says he or she did not getting the release:

Offer to resend it. Confirm the reporter's method of receipt. And ask when you can call back to make sure they got it. (Then follow up by using the method above.)

- € If the reporter says, "No Thanks. I don't think I'm interested."
  - Ask the reporter why.
    - * It may often be the case that you targeted the wrong reporter! In this case, ask them for the correct contact and report the whole process by sending the correct contact the release.
    - * If he or she truly isn't interested, ask what he or she is interested in covering. If you can fill one of the reporter's topics, tell him or her so immediately.
  - Thank the reporter for his or her time and ask they would be interested in other stories from you in the future. (Make a note for future reference!)
- € If the reporter says, "Yes."
  - Find out if the reporter will be running the release as is or wants to set up an interview.
  - Thank the reporter for his or her time.

Part 5 - The interview

- € When a reporter wants to interview you:
  - DON'T just answer off the cuff. Ask for a time to call them back if they are doing a phone interview.
  - Confirm the topic and focus of what the interview is going to be about.
  - Set up a time for the interview.
- € Use the interview prep worksheet to prepare your talking points. (download)
- € If your interview is face-to-face with camera use:
  - Don't wear all black. You'll look as though you're disappearing into a hole. This often throws women into a panic, as we love the slimming properties of black, particularly when TV will probably make you look slightly heavier than you are in real life.
  - Don't wear all white. It makes the lights that may be used bounce back and you'll look as though you just descended from the heavens on a cloud.
  - Don't wear anything with a very small pattern such as pin-stripes, tweed or polka dots. Again, it has a strange effect on lights known as strobing.
  - No visible logos of companies or brands (watch out for this particularly on sportswear) as this may be regarded as advertising. You may be asked to change if a logo is too obvious.
  - Avoid buying a new outfit the day before and acting as if you're going to a job interview. If you feel too stiff and formal in your clothes this will affect how you express yourself.
  - You should wear your make-up much heavier than you normally would. Otherwise you will look washed out.
- € Some things to remember, during the interview:
  - Focus on your three main points from your worksheet.
  - If a reporter is quiet, that doesn't mean fill in the space with you talking. It's a tactic for you to reveal too much.
  - Nothing is EVER 'off the record.'
  - If you don't know, say so. And offer to find out the information.
  - If, for any reason, you can't reveal something, explain that as honestly as you can.

Part 6 - Leveraging your publicity.

- € Post any coverage you receive onto your website. Check to make sure you can use the footage or story, as copyright may apply. If you cannot post the whole thing, perhaps you create a link to their website.
- € Post "As Seen On" on main page of site with a list of the media outlets you've been featured on/in.
- € Send an announcement to your customers/clients
- € Send announcement to possible clients/customers
- € Use Google News Alerts to help track coverage as well.

Part 7 - Getting more publicity.

- € Send reporters a hand written thank you note no more than three days after your story appeared.
  - Express gratitude for taking the time out of their schedule.
  - Tell them what the coverage meant to others (It was informative, well written, etc.)
  - Do NOT thank them for the coverage or tell them how the coverage benefited you.
  - Tell them you will check back with other ideas every month or so that may be of interest to them

LEAD GENERATION LETTERS

= = = = = <<<< === >>>> = = = = =

Letter #1: Gift card giveaway

Name Company

Dear Mr Last name,

New Year's Greetings

AND A FREE $25 HY'S STEAK HOUSE GIFT CARD [or best steak house in area]

As we jump into the New Year, we all are starting this one full of ambitions and some definite fears about the economy. With that in mind, I do hope you will give this letter a couple minutes of your time...

My name is <NAME>, I have ___ years experience in your industry, and have achieved incredible results in very short periods of time. Why should you care who I am? Perfectly understandable question, one that I may just have a few good answers for.

First, you need to understand I am not some consultant who pretends to be a master at the <NICHE>. I am not selling you ad space in my coupon book. And I am not here to waste your time. I don't know enough about you personally, but I do know much about the <NICHE>. , and I have something you should be quite interested in.

So, here is probably what's most important to you: In my ___ years in the <NICHE>, I have consistently used the formula I am revealing here to capture top sales positions everywhere I worked. That same formula earned me substantial commissions and the owners of the businesses I worked with made many multiples of what I did.

I am VERY disciplined about my business and about following up with my clients... something I find sadly lacking the in the <NICHE> (how much potential business on your books is being tossed out the door because of lacking, or poor quality follow up? You can COUNT ON ME to do what I say, when I say... with the results promised.

Second, I have ___ great kids and a terrific, patient wife, photo enclosed. They all eat. The kids will end up going to college, if I have any say in it. That means I have to deliver the goods in my business. And that can only happen if I can WOW you with my professionalism, knowledge, courtesy and (most importantly) results I get.

So, let's start with *what I do know about the industry you are in. You have some challenges right now that will continue to plague you for the next year or two. The most serious of course is the economy. How it will impact your business has yet to be seen, but the signs are there this could be a tough couple years ahead.

Next... finding enough quality people. There is a serious shortage of good people out there, and when you do find them you constantly have to worry about them being lured away by some competitor with a great package and compelling story.

<MODIFY IF NEEDED DEPENDING ON MARKET>

Amongst all the other worries you have, the final one I want to talk about today is the sales ability of your team. Is it up to the level you would like? Capturing enough quality leads for them? Are they converting the leads into customers? This is a huge area I find lacking in most brokerages today. Which is the main reason why I am writing you today. When you have me in for a 30 minute discussion, I will show you my 5 part formula for thriving in the coming years, plus I will give you a $25 gift certificate for [steak house].

It's my gift to you, and hopefully the start to a new relationship amongst our businesses. There is absolutely no obligation. No pressure. No hidden agendas. I promise. After we meet and you hear my proprietary formula for sales success, even if you have no intention on having someone help you grow your business at this time, my goal is for you to call me when the timing IS right.

This truly is about you here...

...you tell me how I should best communicate with you. How and when you would like to meet. And what specific issues you would like my ideas to focus on in our introductory meeting. You tell me what you would like to see for change in your business, I am here to help you achieve your goals in 2009. I will do what's needed to get you the business results you want.

Sincerely, <CONTACT DETAILS>

PS:

3 Step Sequence

#1 [package or bottle of aspirin attached to letter]

Do you get a splitting headache every time you think about managing and motivating your sales team <ALTERNATIVE ON BIGGEST PAIN POINT THEY HAVE>?

Dear Mr Last Name,

As you can see, I have attached a package of aspirin to this letter. Why have I done this? Basically, there are 2 important reasons.

First, what I have to share with you today is critically important, and I needed something unusual to catch your attention. Second, I wanted to make you aware that managing sales people, especially star performers, is a difficult thing to do in the <NICHE> . I have spent __ years in the field, and have developed a proprietary 5 part formula for achieving massive, and sustainable, levels of success in your business.

I urge you to listen to the enclosed audio CD. On this 60 minute interview, I actually reveal the 5 steps that my <NICHE> clients go through to achieve growth rates of 50 – 190% per year. You will also hear from some of my clients, owners just like yourself, on what happened to their sales force once I started to help.

Once you listen in on the recorded interview, you may want to give me a call for one of our introductory sales audits. It only takes 45 minutes, carries no obligation, and is free of cost.

You will also receive a $25 gift certificate for a great steak at {steak house name}... my way of saying thank you for your time.

You can reach me direct at Hope to hear from you soon, <CONTACT DETAILS>

[attached a number of different kind of hats – cheap gimmicky hats work fine – dollar store is ideal]

Tired of Wearing So Many Different Hats?

Dear Mr Lastname, If you're wondering why I sent you so many bizarre looking hats... I did it to make an important point.

As the owner of your <NICHE> , you have a lot of responsibility and duties. I'm sure you started your present business with a much different perspective of what it would be like by now. Many times the day-to-day management of your business can sap you of energy and rob you of your dream.

Yet, a few changes to the way things are run, and how your team sells to your clients, and you can regain back control and enjoyment that is long gone.

Rather than you having to manage the sales team, the admin team, the ____ team... you can focus on long term growth strategies and positioning yourself at the top of your field. Multiple hats no longer needed... send them to those who enjoy doing it.

I personally have ____ years experience selling in the <NICHE> . Each and every company I worked with saw an average of XX% sales growth. And I have since taken my results and compiled to first 5 part ____ formula that is guaranteed to grow your sales too. Without hiring more people, and without any additional hats or workload thrown at you.

If you haven't listened to the CD I sent previously, please do so today. On the CD, I reveal the actual formula I use to grow <NICHE> by XX% or more in the first year. I also have some of your associates (from different companies) on the CD talking about things they did to reduce their workload and simplify their life.

#3 [go to sendaball.com and have them mail the letter with the ball, or have them send the ball to you then you mail it with the letter – on the ball have the saying “I would have a ball helping you grow your sales!”]

You ready to play ball?

Dear Mr. Lastname,

First I sent you an aspirin bottle. Then I sent you all those wacky hats. Now you get a ball some crazy message printed on it.

Have I finally lost it? Do I like to burn money? Hardly!

I’m doing all of this for a very good reason. Your company is one I admire. From what I have seen from the outside, you have a great model and have done well in the business. What I can’t see from the outside is how happy you personally are with the performance of your company. Are your sales where you want them? Profits? Management headaches declining or growing?

My ___ years in the field has proven to me and many others that my 5 part formula for massive sales growth works. It works in every <NICHE> that applies it. And it generates sustainable growth that will be a dramatic help in an economy like we see today.

If you’ll “play ball” with me and have me in for a simple 45 minute audit, I’d also like to offer you a steak lunch or dinner... on me. Just give me a call at <PHONE>, we will set up a mutually agreeable meeting time. There is no obligation or pressure during our meeting, and no matter what you decide at a later date about working with me, the gift card for [steakhouse name] is yours to enjoy.

If you haven’t yet, please review the CD I sent you as well. There are some powerful strategies revealed there that has added some very respectable numbers to brokerages across Canada.

Some of the areas I can help <CHANGE AS NEEDED> ☐ Improve the effectiveness of your sales teams lead generation and conversion process

- Dramatically reduce the risk of economic influences hitting you hard
- Better control over escalating sales team turnover, benefits demand, and administrative nightmares

EVENT MARKETING – TIPS AND TIDBITS

© Troy White

People love a good meeting, fun event,. Or general get together. As long as it isn't a giant pitch fest... they will have a good time.

Some tips to help you out.

9 necessities to properly promote your events.

1 -- A multi-channel marketing plan that spells out what you need to do each week to promote your event.

You must leverage offline media like postcards and letters, emails, phone calls, etc.

Don't expect everyone to be all over Facebook and Twitter.

Cater to THEM...don't expect them to cater to you.

Developing a plan increases the likelihood that you'll contact prospects frequently enough about your event and develop a solid message that you can carry through from piece to piece.

Plus, having a written plan means you can delegate implementation of the plan to someone else!

2 -- A foundational marketing piece to promote your seminar -- such as a salesletter, copy for your direct-response web site, or even a brochure.

Developing one piece that contains EVERY detail needed to sell your event is a great idea for a few reasons.

First, it's like having a salesperson on your staff that you can refer prospects to 24/7. When prospects have everything they need to make a buying decision, they won't put off registration until they're able to get more information from you.

Also, developing this comprehensive piece makes it easier to create supplementary marketing materials.

All you have to do is lift chunks of copy from your salesletter and then polish.

3 -- One or more follow-up marketing tools to continue promoting your seminar.

You'll see the best results from your marketing if you notify prospects about your event more than once. The easiest way to follow-up is to simply re-mail the first promotional piece (e.g., a brochure). But modifying your copy and/or type of follow-up piece can produce big bumps in your response rates. For example, after sending a salesletter, send a postcard that warns of an impending registration deadline.

4 -- A plan for building your database of qualified prospects

When marketing a seminar, the people in your database are your very best prospects, because they already know you. Building your list is almost as important as marketing your seminar ... and this activity deserves its own plan.

5 -- At least one marketing piece designed to build your opt-in list

Most people invite website visitors to join their mailing list. If you want to maximize the growth of your database, you should also actively market the opportunity.

6 -- A system for capturing and keeping seminar registrations to prevent last-minute cancellations

After registering for a seminar, many people are hit with a case of buyer's regret. If you're not staying in touch with registrants after they sign up, they might see red flags warning them to stay away from your event.

At the very least, be sure to confirm registration within 2 business days ... immediately if possible.

7 -- A system for tracking all of your responses, so you gather the data you need to make educated decisions about your marketing for future seminars.

Most new promoters have questions like "How can I tell if I'll get enough registrations to run my seminar?"

"Will this promotion really be worth the effort?" "How many times do I need to contact a prospect to get them to sign up?"

Although there are general rules of event marketing that you can follow when getting started ... you will need to discover what works for YOUR audience and YOUR seminar specifically. Tracking results is how you gather the data you need to answer these questions.

8 -- A plan for capturing testimonials and valuable feedback from seminar attendees.

Testimonials are one of the most powerful marketing tools at your disposal. But if you don't have a plan in place before your seminar, chances are good that you won't capture as many testimonials as you could if you were prepared ... and the ones you do get will be bland.

9 -- A plan for staying in touch with prospects and past seminar attendees throughout the year

Getting someone on your list isn't enough. You have to keep your name and expertise in front of your growing list if you want to remain relevant ... and if you want to increase the likelihood that people on your list will want to attend your future events.

As with your list building and seminar marketing activities, having a written plan makes you more accountable -- and enables you to outsource this portion of your marketing.

So ... here's the question of the day: Do you have all of these elements in place?

Random Event Marketing Tips

Here are some very important tips that you need to know to run successful events.

When you get a question from the audience move AWAY from the person who asked the question. This will get the person to speak up and help the other members of the audience to hear their question better.

Make sure and always keep plenty of room temperature water up in front near the podium. Just like a car needs oil, your voice needs water. You need to keep your throat lubricated.

Improve your speaking skills by reading aloud. Pull a book off the shelf and start reading. If you do this 15 to 20 minutes each night your speaking skills will get better.

Record everything that you do.

First, You might be able to turn it into a product. You can also get it transcribed and use it in your marketing materials.

Also, you'll never know when you can catch a magic moment. Try and get everything on video (put it on Youtube to get more traffic to your site).

If you can't do video (keep it simple - no high end video gear needed), get it on audio as a minimum.

People love lists. When possible, put your information into list form.

It's easier for people to remember things when information is in the form of a list. Remember, the lists can be both positive and negative. The 10 things you must do. The 7 things you must never do when . . .

Remember the 6X6 rule when it comes to visuals. You should never put more than 6 words on 6 lines.

Take notes during the seminar.

Keep An "instructor's manual" up in front of the room to make any comments so that you can improve the seminar the next time around. This will help your event get better and better.

Seminar promotion ideas Step 1: Write a quick sales script highlight three key things that will happen at the event that the registrant can't miss out on.

ex: Marj, we're excited that you're coming to our event. At the event, Rhonda is going to show you how _____, _____ can help you _____.

Step 2: Hire someone for a reasonable hourly rate and show them how to naturally go through the script

Step 3: KEY QUESTION TO INCLUDE IN SCRIPT - "Marj, I'm doing a quick survey for Rhonda. What are three things you'd like to get out of the event that would make this a can't miss for you?"

The key is to get involvement.

When the client tells you why it's important that they show up, cancellations and no-shows go dramatically down.

I would advise you do this a week out from the event.

---- There's more detail to this but this should be enough to get you going....remember, it's all in the script and how you deliver it. ----

OTHER INFORMATION

Keep providing them the benefits of the event after they register.

Highlight the value adds ñ Tell more about the presentations/ speakers.

For any reason they should not think that they have made a wrong decision.

Make them feel more excited about the networking opportunities.

Keep sending information like testimonials from the past or video links from you tube or photo directories to keep them updated.

Provide more information about the venue and things that are around or can be done.

Also if possible share the names of other companies that have registered or any other relevant updates such as a new speaker or sponsor.

If you do another event invite the current registrants as well, this can clear their doubts. If they are adamant to cancel, take appropriate feedback and act on it! Mantra: 'More value you create, lesser cancellations you get' Happy event marketing!

Are Warranties a Guarantee You Can Trust?

They are a major profit center for most supplies... Are they good or evil for you the consumer?

Who hasn't been approached for an extended warranty? These days it seems like every electronic product or appliance is offered alongside an extended warranty.

Often, those warranties are expensive. Sometimes they are used – other times they are wasted. But what infuriates me the most is that people like you and I may not be aware of all the guarantees in place that will enhance your lifestyle.

Not all of them are add-ons, and not all of them cost money.

My name is <name>. I realize this is an unusual subject to discuss, but it is a necessary one. Do the professionals who serve you stand behind their service?

What assurances do they give you – do they make it clear, and do they stand behind what they say?

In writing?

We recognize that there are some outcomes that cannot be guaranteed – such as our inability to guarantee specific returns on certain investment products.

In these cases, it should be made very clear what can and cannot be guaranteed.

However...what about the quality of service, such as offering respectful service, doing what you say you will do... returning calls on time, being on time for appointments, keeping information confidential, etc.

Those seem reasonable, even like common sense if you ask me. But they aren't common sense... are they? Every service professional should have guarantees and warranties in place like that. I do... Here is my guarantee to you:

I value and appreciate your decision to work with my business and service I will treat you with respect I will follow through on my commitments to you I will be on time, and if for whatever reason I get held up – I will contact you as soon as possible I will your personal information confidential, and will NOT sell your contact information

As a <DESIGNATION or CERTIFICATION>, I have signed a code of Professional responsibility, and am a member of an organization committed to ethical service.

Enclosed is a brochure about working with me, which includes our Customer Bill of Rights <If you have one done – if not – replace with something you have included>.

We back it up in writing and stand behind our claims. Please have a look through this and let me know your thoughts.

Then, call me at xxx-xxx-xxxx and I would love to come out at a time that suits you, I will bring you coffee, tea, or cookies (or all of the above if you prefer).

I promise you there will be no sales pitches or hidden agendas.

It will be a good time for us to meet and discuss your present situation, and what areas I might be able to help you with.

If you feel I abuse your time, or don't deliver on any one of the commitments above or attached, please let me know and I will give you $50 cash for misleading you.

I would appreciate the opportunity to serve you.

Article – Ask a Question Day

Subject lines or headlines for blog post: Is there such a thing as a bad question? Are good questions helpful to your health? Do the questions you ask determine the direction of your life?

Article

I love asking questions.

In all my years in business (and in life), I have found a powerful correlation between the questions I asked, and the guidance I was given.

It was John DeMartini who said that the quality of your life is dictated by the quality of the questions that you ask.

...The better the questions you ask... the better advice you get and the better the outcome will be.

...Poorly thought out questions means bad advice and bad outcomes.

Some of the questions I would encourage you to ask yourself (and others) in the coming weeks or months will determine the positive outcomes you get.

Things like...

- . 1) Think of a time when you received outstanding service. What was it about the service that was memorable?
- . 2) Think of a time when you received poor service. What was it about the service that disappointed you?
- . 3) If you could offer just one piece of advice to businesses in your community – what would that be?
- . 4) When you received exceptionally outstanding or exceptionally poor service – did you tell the service provider or business? If not – why not?

Please have a look at my Bill of Rights <link> to see how I personally have taken the initiative to help my clients further this year.

Life Questions:

If you could have lunch with any three people alive today – who would they be and why? What 3 questions would you ask them during lunch? Think about it: if you were limited to only 3 questions – what would be the most powerful questions you could ask that would give you the greatest insights into your personal success and fulfillment?

What would you do if you knew you could not fail? Would you do things differently? What specifically would you do differently? What's holding you back now? If there is something holding you back, how could you eliminate the obstacle just for a month? Do it!

Good questions make you think. Hard.

And well thought out answers should seriously make you evaluate how you will use the advice or answer given.

So I will leave you with this...

...what one or two things could you do in the next 30 days that will make a positive impact on your health, wealth, or happiness?

Will you commit to me right now that you will do at least one of these things? Please do – then let me know what happens! I love a great story. <name>

1st Paper Money Anniversary (monopoly money attached – every dollar store carries it)

Your money is not a game...

Dear <name> or Friend.

Your personal finances are serious business. Just ask anyone who has treated their money like anything but serious. They end up with little savings and a lifetime of regret over the simple things they could have done to improve their financial situation.

No matter what your situation is with money right now, I may have something that can help. There is no catch and nothing for sale here. Rather the opposite.

My name is <name> and I specialize in helping <NICHE> with <industry or area of expertise>.

The reason I sent you this letter and this fake money is to show you I do understand the difference between the two. Which is exactly why I trained and became a <CERTIFICATION>. I realize that <NICHE> don't want to be treated the same as a <NON-NICHE>. And I realize that you have unique needs.

Which is why I would like to extend to you a free offer.

If you are interested in talking more about your <finances, insurance needs, etc>, then please give me a call at xxx-xxx-xxxx. We can arrange a time that works best for you – and I will also bring with me a couple things you may enjoy. First – a free coffee card you can use next time you are out. The second are some special reports I prepared that show you the common mistakes <NICHE> make when looking at their <finances, insurance needs, etc>.

There is no catch or ulterior motive.

Get to Know Your Customer Day

Subject lines or headlines for blog post:

Do I know you? Something surprising about me, and a question for you In honour of getting to know you day

Article

Did you know that April 19th is “get to know your customer day”? An odd reason to celebrate, but a great reason for you and I to have an honest discussion.

In this cold, impersonal world we live and work in, it is rare to actually know the people you work with, buy from, or associate with on a more casual level.

Which is sad. Don't you agree? Knowing interesting things about people certainly makes for some interesting conversations! For example: some things about me that you may not know...

- Grew up in what city
  - Family of # of brothers and sisters
  - # of kids you have
  - Hobbies (stranger the better)
  - Pet peeves
- What about you? I would love to know more about you. Please tell me some interesting tidbits about your background. About who you are. About the concerns you have with today's business climate. About today's youth. Feel free to spill the beans here – I would love to hear from you. And if you ever want to sit down and talk about your <finances, insurance, housing, mortgage, etc>, please let me know. We will arrange a time and I will bring the coffee or tea. No catch. And no hard selling. Just a chance to get to know each other better. Direct Mail Prospecting – 1st Dictionary Anniversary Noah Webster copywrite's 1st dictionary (1828)

Good to hear some things have changed since 1828 (or not)... Dear <name> or Friend.

Change is inevitable. But not all change is good, nor are all bad things changed for the good.

Back in 1828, Noah Webster place a copyright on the "An American Dictionary of the English Language". This was one of the first editions of the present day Merriam-Webster dictionary.

What is fascinating about Noah Webster is his observation and disgust at the state of the educational system back then.

According to Wikipedia:

"As a teacher, he [Webster] had come to dislike American elementary schools. They could be overcrowded, with up to seventy children of all ages crammed into one-room schoolhouses. They had poor underpaid staff, no desks, and unsatisfactory textbooks that came from England."

Webster took it upon himself to find new ways to educate the children of those days. From the training techniques he used, to the tools such as the present day dictionary, Webster made a major impact on the system.

But some would say the school system is still broken... and I would be one to agree.

Webster made some significant advances, but later day educators seemed to lack initiative in changing the way the schooling system is run and the advances they implemented.

What does this have to do with you?

I wanted to share with you this unusual story of advancement and change, and to introduce myself as

APRIL MARKETING TOOLS

April is a month usually full of some interesting weather (this also can apply any other month of the year!) so I wanted to give you a couple quick marketing ideas you can steal from me.

Both of them have worked wonders for me in my marketing and promotions. Both of them are very simple to implement. One is really copy/paste simple. The other may take an ounce of initiative on your part.

First, the one that takes effort. A couple years ago we had a nasty snow storm in Calgary in April. Late April. Rather than whine about it, I leveraged it and made some money.

First, I got my video camera out and my x-shot stick (extendable stick you can use to mount your video camera – makes it look like someone is following you with a camera – you will see on this video).

Next, I bundled up and took the dog for a walk.

Here's where I figured out what to say on video (doing my best to keep it short, with a story and a lesson – last, a call to action).

Shot video. Created bundle when I got home. Emailed it to my list. Success!

HERE'S THE VIDEO TO WATCH

http://youtu.be/nOXtdDe\_24M

Very, very simple. Worked like gangbusters. Next time you need something to use in your marketing, use Mother Nature! Here's one other way to do this. I LOVE THIS LETTER AND APPROACH! Think of all the fun you can have with this.

Copy/paste/modify as you need..

Dear Mother Nature,

Somewhere where it's hot blvd From: Your name THIS IS NO LONGER FUNNY!! We surrender – ENOUGH already. Please be advised that we no longer appreciate your sense of humor with our weather. Your funniest one yet – giving us 2 feet of snow on a recent Monday morning.

Real funny.

I loved driving to work that day, sitting in traffic for 3 hours, shoveling enough snow to make an igloo, and hurting my back in the process.

---

Due to your recent attitude towards us, we will be making your special prize available to another more deserving Mother (or Father).

We know there are a lot of VERY deserving mothers and father out there, ones that really do appreciate us and enjoy seeing us happy (not buried in snow).

Also, we have canceled you order you recently placed with us for a _____, and would like to advise you that until you change your current weather attitude towards us, we will be unable to accommodate you any further.

It is regrettable that such a letter was necessary, but again, we repeat – NOT FUNNY, AT ALL.

Best regards, (I hope you have a blizzard at your house today) <name> Business

Next page of the Winter Festival Letter

Headline: Mother Nature's Loss is Your Gain...

Mother nature has been unnecessarily cruel to us this winter – and I want you to benefit from her nasty attitude.

As you saw on the previous letter, we are not impressed with her... but we are impressed with you.

In fact, as one of our best customers, we want to offer you a special Meltdown to Spring Program. During the month of February (or March) we are offering you a free membership into our Gold Star Program, exclusively for our best customers. When you become a member of our Gold Star Program, you get the following benefits:

- . 1) Regular special offers and discounts – minimum of 10% off future purchases
- . 2) Our monthly Gold Star Newsletter mailed directly to your home or office
- . 3) Private members only parties – 3 times a year we will host a special party just for you. Come and meet new friends, get free food and drinks, be entertained by our fabulous _____ (band, magician, hypnotist, etc). And, for Gold Members only, there is a private viewing room that showcases our brand new products – you get them at special prices that are not available to anyone else

4) Hanging out with celebrities! Each party will bring in celebrities for you to mingle with, have your photo taken with, or even get their signatures. (some of the celebrities we have booked for the next 3 meetings are _____)

5) Birthday clubs. On your birthday, not only will we buy you lunch at our favorite restaurant, _____, we will also offer you a special deal only available to you on your birthday.

All you need to do to become part of the Gold Star Program is to _____. Try it out for the first year for free, and let us know your thoughts.

Mother nature does NOT get this program – nor will she be allowed to until she changes her current attitude towards us.

I hope this helps you warm up a little on a frosty day. Here's to spring!!! <name>

How's that for simple dimple?

So the question now remains – will you do anything with it?

It made me and my clients a bundle.

Could for you too. But it won't if you let it rot away in an email box or on a blog post. USE IT! Then thank me later with lavish gifts and exotic beach trips. Deal? Have a great, hopefully sunny and hot day. Troy

Article – Fairy Godmother Wheel

Subject lines or headlines for blog post: Do you believe in Fairy Godmothers? Proof positive that Fairy Godmothers DO exist Fairy Godmothers... for real?

Article

According to an online Thesaurus, a Fairy Godmother is “a female character in some fairy stories who has magical powers and can bring unexpected good fortune to the hero or heroine”.

Reading that, I think we could all agree that we have met one or two of those in our days... ...right? Think back.

How many times in your life has your own mother, or someone else’s mother blessed you with a delicious home-cooked meal? Or extended their welcoming arms when you were in pain or needed advice?

I would bet you took that mothers offering and gratefully accepted it (loving every minute of it!)

Mothers day is right around the corner and I wanted to extend to you this article.

Take a moment and think back over all the great women whom have blessed your life. Think about what makes them great. Their personal little quirks. The things about them that make you laugh. The things they did to make you laugh.

Then do them a favour... ...no matter if they are still with us or not. Write them a thank you letter. A simple one. Nothing fancy.

Just share with them that you are thinking of them and that you really do appreciate everything they have ever done for you.

It’ll take you 20 minutes tops.

Best 20 minute investment you can make this month.

If the mother or mothers you are writing to are still with us on this earth, send them the letter.

Don’t email it.

Write it out in hand. Get a real envelope. And a stamp.

Then mail it.

It will make you feel sooooo good.

Them... even better.

If they have passed on, write the letter and keep it in a safe place. Read it once a month when you are feeling down or just need a picker upper.

Nothing beats some simple appreciation for the fantastic women who have blessed our lives. It is very therapeutic – just try it and see. Let me know how you feel after. <name>

PS: I am hosting a very intimate group for a private _____ event. If you are interested in attending, please contact me as soon as possible as we only have room for xx people. What a great way to get out – have some fun – and meeting some great people. Please join us - call me direct at xxx.xxx.xxxx and we can hold you a spot or two.

Direct Mail Prospecting – Mothers Day (band aid attached – every dollar store carries it)

Dear <name> or Friend.

Think back to when life was so simple that an ittsy bitsy bandaid could make you feel brand new again...

...life was easier ...your lifetime quest was to play as much as possible with your friends

...the biggest challenge of the day was to see how far you could go on the monkey bars without falling

And when you did fall, mom would put a bandaid on, give you a little kiss, and you were raring to go again.

Those were definitely the good old days. You and I have definitely grown older, but wiser at the same time.

We now understand that life's complications are usually self-induced, and sometimes simple little bandaids can still make us feel better.

We now understand how precious each moment is. ...and how important playtime with friends and family really is.

Mothers day is just around the corner and I wanted to give you a little smile to brighten up your day, and to pay homage to the moms in our lives whose love and memories continue to carry us forward.

My name is <name> and I specialize in helping Boomers and Seniors with <industry or area of expertise>.

The reason I sent you this letter and this bandaid is to show you I do understand that life's bumps and bruises are common, yet the older we get the longer those bumps and bruises seem to stick around.

<BACKGROUND AND NICHE FOCUS>

Your needs are different.

Your expectations are different.

Your wisdom is much deeper.

Which is why I would like to extend to you a free offer.

If you are interested in talking more about making your <finances, insurance needs, etc> pains go away, then please give me a call at xxx-xxx-xxxx.

We can arrange a time that works best for you – and I will also bring with me a couple things you may enjoy. First – a free coffee card you can use next time you are out. The second are some special reports I prepared that show you the common mistakes <NICHE> make when looking at their <finances, insurance needs, etc>.

There is no catch or ulterior motive.

Please call me at xxx-xxx-xxxx and let me know if you want to sit down and chat. Band-aids are on me as well. <signature>

Article – National Family Day

Subject lines or headlines for blog post: In honour of your family

Doesn't your family deserve a little surprise?

It's time to shock and surprise your family

This is for your family: the good, the bad, and the dysfunctional

Article Take a moment and think back over all the great family members who have blessed your life. The good... the bad... and the dysfunctional :o) Think about what makes them great.

Their personal little quirks.

The things about them that make you laugh.

The things they did to make you laugh... or cry.

Then do them a favour...

...no matter if they are still with us or not.

...no matter if they are in your good books or not.

Write them a gratitude letter.

A simple one.

Nothing fancy.

Just share with them that you are thinking of them and that you really do appreciate everything they have ever done for you.

Again – the good, the bad, and the dysfunctional.

Even if you are not on the best of terms now or in the past... they were a part of your life and they helped you be who you are today

It'll take you 20 minutes tops.

Best 20 minute investment you can make this month.

If the family members you are writing to are still with us on this earth, send them the letter.

Don't email it.

Write it out in hand... get a real envelope... and a stamp.

Direct Mail Prospecting – Report Card Day (report card attached – dollar stores and teacher stores carry them)

I want you to fill out this report card after you have met me...

Remember the dread that used to creep up on report card day?

“Did I study enough? Will that one test drag down my grades? What are my parents going to do!?”

Sometimes this carried forward into the workforce with quarterly or annual evaluations...those could be even worse (depending on the boss you had).

I have a rather bold request for you today. First, an introduction....

...my name is <name> and I specialize in helping Boomers and Seniors with their <industry or area of expertise>.

The reason I sent you this letter and this report card is to show you I do understand that someone in my position needs to be held accountable for my own performance on the job.

Which is exactly why I trained and became a <CERTIFICATIONS>. I realize that <NICHE> have unique needs and interests from anyone in my field.

You expect to be treated with respect, and with dignity. Which is why I would like to extend to you a free offer.

You’ll notice that I included both a report card on the front, and a Bill of Rights on the back of this letter.

Read through the bill of rights first.

Pay close attention to the promises I make.

To the training I have received in the <CERTIFICATION> program.

Then call me at xxx.xxx.xxxx and let me know when a good time to sit down and talk would be.

There is no catch or obligation.

No sales pitches.

I would like to get to know you more, and to see if I may be a good fit for your future <industry> needs.

After we have met, fill out this report card and send it in to me (or you can do it while we meet).

If you feel I have misrepresented myself or my industry... or treated you improperly... or actually tried to sell you anything – give me an ‘F’ on the report card and I will give you $50 for wasting your time.

There will be no hard feelings... as I didn’t deliver what I promised.

And there are always repercussions for that.

Does that sound fair?

If so – drop me a line at xxx.xxx.xxxx and let me know when a good time for us to meet would be.

Coffee or tea is on me. And I will do my best to earn an ‘A’ from you... I guarantee it with $50 of my own cash. Let me know your thoughts. Thanks, <signature>

JULY MARKETING TOOLS

Article – workaholics day

Subject lines or headlines for blog post:

The good, the bad, and the ugly about workaholics

Here’s why workaholism is so good for us

Know a workaholic? Read this, it may save their life

Article – According to Wikipedia, “An ergomaniac or workaholic is a person who is addicted to work.” Do you know one... or a few? Maybe you are now... or were one yourself?

Being passionate about your career, your business, or your job is a good thing. But, when it interferes with your family, your social life, or your health... it turns from a good thing to a dangerous thing.

I am not here to convince yourself of the detrimental effects of working 80+ hours a week – you probably know it, or aren't willing to admit that it applies to you.

In honour of national workaholics day (July 5th), I would like to share a few ideas that may help you get more done in less time (whether or not you are a workaholic or not, these will still help you get more done).

Technology has made it FAR easier to become a 24x7 workaholic. The tools are there to keep us plugged into work every waking moment.

Email at our finger tips.

Phone calls can be made from anywhere (including your child's or grandchild's school or sporting events).

You may be at the event, but your child will see you working while there... defeating the entire purpose of you being there for them.

So I want to challenge you to try a few new things in the coming week:

- . 1) Become a chunker. Work in uninterrupted time chunks of 30 minutes. Block off 30 minute chunks through your day – at least 4 of them. 2 hours of your day isn't much to ask if it saves a relationship or your health. Plan out what exactly you will work on during that chunk. And block out everything else. No phones. No email. No chat feasts with colleagues. Just you and your project, and 30 minutes of uninterrupted time. Use a timer to keep yourself on track. Promise me you will try this? You can get FAR more done in a 30 minute chunk of time than hours of 'multi-tasking' All the scientific research proves this as true
- . 2) Use the chunking method with those you love as well. Book off time to be with them and promise them you will NOT check email or answer your phone during that time. The punishment if you do? Cash – you pay them $20 for every offence. That will help!
- . 3) Find an accountability partner that can help you stick to the plan. Talk to them once a day for 5 minutes – reporting in on how you are doing and where you faltered. Admitting your mistakes publicly, regularly will help you see how bad it has become.

There, 3 simple tips that anyone can try out. Are you up for the challenge? Will you give it a go for a week, at a minimum? Good – now block off some times for your chunking – and stick to the plan. It will do far more for your health, your relationships, and your productivity than anything else. Try it and let me know how it works out...please.

<name>

PS: I am hosting a very intimate group for a private _____ event. If you are interested in attending, please contact me as soon as possible as we only have room for xx people. What a great way to get out – have some fun – and meeting some great people. Please join us - call me direct at xxx.xxx.xxxx and we can hold you a spot or two.

Direct Mail Prospecting – Gorgeous Grandma Day

(small plastic doll type mirror attached – every dollar store carries it – also www.orientaltrading.com has them)

Do you know what July 23rd is?

Dear <name> or Friend, There is a different type of event coming up, and I would love you to be part of it.

It will cost you nothing. And you have far more to gain through the positive ‘karma’ you gain in return.

July 23rd is Gorgeous Grandma day.

What... you hadn’t heard of it before? I hadn’t until recently either, and I absolutely love the idea!

We all know a gorgeous grandma... but chances are we never told them so. The kind things they did for us. The great cookies they made. The way they made us feel and laugh. Grandmas are a very special type of person.

Which is why I would love it if you recognize a gorgeous grandma you know. Tell them a few of things you love most about them. Write them a letter and mail it to them. Take them out for lunch or dinner.

Spend time with them, either in person or on the phone, if in person isn’t possible.

You can even tell them about the special day that the 23rd is...chances are you are the first who has ever taken the time and made the effort to do something like this for them.

So simple...yet will stay with both you and them for life.

Please do this... it will change your life.

Why am I asking you to do this?

My name is <name> and I love helping <NICHE>. I ever invested in my own training so I understand more of what those <NICHE> appreciate most in their life.

I trained and became a <CERTIFICATION> Your needs are different.

Your expectations are different. Your wisdom is much deeper.

Which is why I would like to extend to you a free offer. I specialize in <industry> and would love to get a chance to know you better. No sales pitches or ulterior motives. Just a chance to get together over a coffee or tea and discuss your life experiences.

If you are interested in talking more about your <finances, insurance needs, etc>, then we certainly can talk about that as well. But the purpose of this get together is more to talk about you.

Please give me a call at xxx-xxx-xxxx if you are interested.

We can arrange a time that works best for you – and I will also bring with me a couple things you may enjoy. First – a free coffee card you can use next time you are out. The second are some special reports I prepared that show you the common mistakes <NICHE> make when looking at their <finances, insurance needs, etc>.

There is no catch or ulterior motive.

Article – Senior Citizens Day - August 21

Subject lines or headlines for blog post:

Do you know what day Sunday, August 21st is?

Make sure the seniors you know are available Aug 21st

This Sunday is a very special Seniors Day

Article

Once a year this comes about... and I wanted to make sure you know about it, and hopefully do something special for it.

Sunday, August 21st is National Senior Citizens Day.

Maybe you know a few seniors, maybe you are one yourself...

...either way...this is a special day and Seniors deserve special recognition.

Seniors lived through the depression, some fought for our future in World War II. The past 50 years has sped up the change they have lived through.

They've seen the massive amount of change happening in their world, and within their direct families.

They may not carry cell phones – but are well aware those younger than them do. To seniors, that means when they phone, someone should answer, or get back to them very shortly.

Seniors changed our world... and continue to do so to this very day.

So I would highly recommend you do something special for them on the 21st.

One thing they would love from you? Write them an appreciation letter.

© Troy White

Seniors didn't grow up wired into a computer like today's youth has. They grew up with hand written everything... and still love it.

Write a senior in your life a letter. Tell them you are thinking about them – and wanted to thank them for being who they are.

Take them out to lunch and let them read your letter. The impact this little gesture will have is immense. And if you are a senior – thank you. You have helped raised the future generations.

You helped us maintain our freedom. You laid the foundation for all future generations to piggy back on. Thank you. I do appreciate you. And would love to say so in person if given the chance. Just say when. <name>

Southpaws Unite... Untraditional Thinkers Are The New Norm

Dear <first name>

Sunday, August 13th is National Left Handers day... which is why I attached this left handed glove to this letter.

Why would you care one little bit? Fair question...

...Less than 12% of the population is left handed. Simple things needed to be reinvented for left handers. Things that right handers just take for granted... not even having a clue that there was a problem in the first place.

Which is exactly why I wanted to introduce myself to you.

My name is <name> and I am just like a south paw. I don't see things like the majority of others do – so I went out, found a solution, and created a whole new way of doing things.

<BACKGROUND AND CERTIFICATION DETAILS>

The only reason I want you to understand this is to show you that I am a southpaw and I sought out answers to a problem I saw.

And I have one simple request for you.

Can I buy you a coffee or tea? I would like to sit down with you for 30 minutes and just chat. No pressure. No sales pitches.

Just an introduction and a chance for us to get to know each other.

Would that be fair?

Please give me a call at xxx.xxx.xxxx and we can find a time that works.

I have attached my Bill of Rights so you can see how important professionalism and ethics are within my business.

FREE Seminar for <NICHE> Shows You The BEST Way To Stay Healthy... and It Tastes Great Too!

Dear <firstname>

The raw Cacao bean is what makes chocolate. Most people understand that...

...but they may not know that the proper way to pronounce it, is "kuh-KOW"... not "co- co" like most people think.

...most people also don't realize that the raw, unprocessed cacao bean is the healthiest food available. On the ORAC scale (which measures the antioxidant capacities of different foods), cacao beans are at the top of the charts – more than double that of beans and wild blueberries).

...and... you may not realize that you can attend a very fun chocolate tasting event... free.

Where you can meet new people, sample some of the most delicious chocolates you've ever tried... and have a great time.

My name is <name> and I would like to invite you out to a fun filled afternoon of chocolate tasting, laughter, and some helpful information for keeping your immune system at it's strongest.

There is no charge to attend... but there is a catch.

This is only for those 50 yrs of age and older. You can bring a friend if you like, but we only have room for xx people like you.

Article – Elephant appreciation day Subject lines or headlines for blog post: Do you know what day Thursday, September 22nd is? Have you ever heard of the book “Modoc”?

This Sunday is a very special Day

Article

One of the best true stories ever written is the book Modoc: The True Story of the Greatest Elephant That Ever Lived by Ralph Helfer. An incredible story talking about the bond a young boy develops with a young elephant. Unforgettable story is more like it. If you like to pick up a great heart wrenching story, pick this one up.

They say an elephant never forgets. And I don't want anyone to forget that September 22nd is Elephant Appreciation Day!

Elephants are a symbol of wisdom in Asian cultures and are famed for their memory and intelligence,

They also show us what can happen when old ideas and beliefs remain unchallenged.

When elephants are young and in captivity, they are chained with thick ropes to ensure they don't escape. As they get older, those shackles are kept the same size... and the elephant never thinks to challenge the strength of the shackles. All they have to do is challenge it once and it would quickly dissolve under the immense power of these giants.

Which is just like the way much of the business world is... unchallenged.

I don't see things like the majority of others do – so I went out, found a solution, and created a whole new way of doing things.

<SOME BRIEF BACKGROUND ON WHERE YOU CAME FROM AND WHAT MAKES YOU DIFFERENT> I broke the traditional mold used in my industry ... and I love it... so do my clients. And I challenge you to demand more and press yourself to push the boundaries. Then let me know what you find.

FREE Beer Tasting and Pairing Seminar ...for <NICHE> Only

Did you know that there have been different styles of beer made since 2,000 BC? That's a lot of brewing experience.

In 4,100 years, they must have learned a thing or two about beer quality, tasting, and even pairing the right beer with different foods.

So why is that most of us who enjoy a cold one every once in a while typically stick with the brands and styles of beer that we know?

With the hundreds, even thousands, of different alternatives to the same-old, same-old beer we always drink... why don't we try new kinds?

Mainly it comes down to knowledge.

Not know what types of beers we would like. And not know what types of beers that are available (even knowing all the different kinds, brands and styles can seem overwhelming).

My name is <name> and I would like to invite you out to a fun filled afternoon of beer tasting, laughter, and some helpful information for matching beers with foods. We may even talk about some of the recent research out there that shows the immense health benefits in certain types of beer.

Article – National Bosses Day

Subject lines or headlines for blog post: Ever wanted to blow up your boss? Your boss wants you to read this Your old boss wants you to read this Article There are 3 kinds of bosses in this world:

demeaning you. They are the jerks that think their job as a boss is to make sure you are always worried about being fired.

- There are those that are a dream to work with. They are encouraging. They are trusting. They value your hard work and stand behind you anytime something goes a little haywire. Then there are the types of bosses that few people think about... our customers. Whenever you buy something from a company, you are their boss. You can complain, you can encourage, or you can take your money elsewhere, and encourage everyone else to do the same.

"There is only one boss. The customer. And he can fire everybody in the company from the chairman on down, simply by spending his money somewhere else." - Sam Walton.

It has never been easier than now to get your negative experiences publicized. The internet. All these things like Facebook. Email. Blogs. All of them are perfect for spreading the word. Good and bad.

In my business, my customers and clients are kings and queens. They are the ones in control... and if I don't do my job right, they ensure I don't make money and cannot feed my family.

I personally work very hard to ensure my clients DO get the best experience possible.

In fact, I love working with <NICHE>. I also knew that most of them were fed up with the present state of customer service out there. So I went out and found the training that solves this problem

As a <TITLE>, I now understand what <NICHE> want, and guarantee to deliver the experience they desire.

I also encourage you to do the same. If you have customers, invest in more training to find out what they want. If you don't have customers, you still have others in your life you interact with. Ask them more questions... more personal questions. Find out who they really are. Find out their dreams, their goals, their passions. Talk about their interests... and they will soon become even closer clients and friends. Certainly makes for some great connections and friendships! <name>

Sweetest Day (include a candy or stick of sweet gum, You could also send your favorite desert recipe; alternatively write your letter on a recipe card – from the dollar store or oriental trading)

You Are Sweet... An unusual event led me to write you this letter

Dear <first name> Who knew? It's not Halloween or Valentines day – it's October 17th and is official the sweetest day that the candy industry sells 75% of their business.

Herbert Birch Kingston, a philanthropist and candy company employee wanted to bring happiness into the lives of orphans and others who were forgotten.

With the help of friends, he began to distribute candy and small gifts to the underprivileged.

The tradition caught on with movie star Ann Pennington presenting 2,200 Cleveland newspaper boys with boxes of candy to express gratitude for their service to the public.

Another popular movie star, Theda Bara, distributed 10,000 boxes of candy to people in Cleveland hospitals and also gave candy to all who came to watch her film in a local theater.

Often we take things for granted... like the assumption that Halloween or Valentines day would be the greatest sales day for sweets.

What does this have to do with you?

I wanted to show a little appreciation for the simple things in life and the little surprises is one of the trends that fuels this celebration.

Please accept this sweet gift on my behalf... and I would love to offer you a coffee or tea (cookies on me!).

EMAIL NEWSLETTER

Subject: Criminal acts at Christmas... making sure you aren't part

Hi <firstname>, Are you breaking the law?

Not exactly something that we plan to do. But something that far too many people do at this time of year.

In honor of the Anniversary of the 1st Taxicab in use in London (1897), I want to talk to you about a very important issue that may impact you and/or your family.

Taxi cabs are a part of everyday life.

Some people use them for all their transportation, others use them infrequently for times they want to go out and have a little 'cheer'.

We are in the midst of the busiest shopping season of the year... as well as the busiest party season of the year.

Alcohol is freely enjoyed and used during the Holiday season.

You may even be having a get together at home, or taking others out for dinner and drinks (both of which are good ideas, but care must be taken).

The opportunities are everywhere... company parties, supplier parties, family get togethers, friends gathering... each of them a fun time.

For the coming month, I wanted to extend some ideas to make your holiday season a little safer for you and your family.

First, the facts: * Impaired driving is the leading criminal cause of death in all of Canada

* In 2007, it was estimated that 3,045 individuals were killed in motor vehicle crashes in Canada. MADD Canada estimates that at a minimum 1,239 of these fatalities were impairment-related. * The rules apply to the water as well! In 2005, it was reported that there were 126 boating fatalities, 47 of which involved known or suspected alcohol use (37%!!)

Some tips to make your month safe:

- . 1) Know the limits! Some provinces are now at .05 blood alcohol level. Depending on the size of person, that can be one single drink that makes it a criminal act to drive.
- . 2) Report bad or impaired drivers you see on the road. If you don't, how can you be sure it isn't someone you know that they run into a couple miles down the road? A friend? Family member? Call the police immediately if you see any signs of impaired driving.
- . 3) Be a responsible host. If you are having others over for some Christmas cheer, make sure you are prepared. First, have lots of hearty food available for people to snack on. Breads and dips or sandwiches are perfect for parties. Watch what is happening. You are the host and part of your job as a host is to pay attention to how much people are drinking. If they are driving, make sure you let them know that you have taxis or driving services available. Even offer to make it easier for them to get their car the next day. If you are entertaining people that are drinking, it IS your responsibility to ensure all of your guests stay off the roads while impaired.
- . 4) Be a good person and don't let your friends and family drive after drinking. Let them borrow a couch, or a spare bed... just don't let them drive.
- . 5) Tell your kids NOT to get in the car with someone who has been drinking – you'll pick them up and they won't get in trouble for calling you! As well, you should also never get in a car with a driver that has been drinking.
- . 6) If you are entertaining – make sure you have all kinds of different non-alcoholic drinks as well. Coffee, pops, juice and water.

These may be common sense tips for the holiday season, but they are ideas you need to follow.

If you are having a fun event, make sure you have ample food, taxi numbers or coupons on hand, and sufficient quantities of non-alcoholic beverages available.

The point is not to put a damper on some holiday fun, but to ensure you are safe while doing so. So enjoy... just not too much. Taxi Cabs are the cheapest thing going... especially when you consider the alternatives!

<signature>

PS: I am hosting a very intimate group for a private champagne and wine tasting at <JV partner companies name>. We will be adhered, of course, to all of the rules and suggestions above. If you are interested in attending, please contact me as soon as possible as we only have room for xx people. What a great way to get out – have some fun – and meeting some great people. Please join us - call me direct at xxx.xxx.xxxx and we can hold you a spot or two.

Possible envelope ideas: Your Own Personal/Business Bill of rights printed out,

Dear friend, As you can see, I have attached something quite unusual with this letter. Why? Two reason actually:

First, December 10th is Human Rights Day. We all have rights. Sometimes others try and take those away without our permission. So I have included a little something to show you that I am thinking of you.

Second, I wanted to make sure that you understand who I am and why I have developed my own Bill of Rights.

The formal establishment of the December 10th Human Rights Day occurred in December, 1950.

For 60 years now, we have given people an opportunity to celebrate the fact that we do need to acknowledge our rights and understand what they mean. In 2009, the focus was on non-discrimination. “All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights”.

These first few famous words of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights established 60 years ago the basic premise of international human rights law. Yet today, the fight against discrimination remains a daily struggle for millions around the globe.

Please have a look through my own Bill of Rights, written for you. And, as you enjoy the holiday season festivities, please take some time to reflect on the gift of living in a world, a nation, a country, society, community, and family where the rights of each individual are embraced, celebrated and protected. Have a safe and enjoyable holiday season. I am thinking of you and want to wish you all the best in the coming year.

December Customer Event – Champagne and Wine Tasting

December: Champagne & Wine Tasting for Non-connoisseurs

What better way to acknowledge your clients than with a celebration party. Everyone loves a great party – especially when you combine it with an educational event.

Partnering up with a local Wine Merchant is a fantastic way to build your exposure and create strong bonds with your clients.

The champagne and wine tasting idea is quite simple, we suggest that you find a Joint Venture Partner who is in the wine business, has a facility that can be used for group demonstrations, and someone who is has the skills to teach to a group. Ideally, your potential JV partner also has their own portfolio of mature clients that he/she can promote this event to. While that is not the point, it most definitely is an added bonus.

You will benefit from exposure to your JV's clients; he/she will benefit from exposure to yours; and you both will benefit from exposure to the new prospects that attend this event.

In the first week of November we suggest that you begin your search for the perfect JV partner for this event. They could be a small wine dealer with a side or back room set aside for tasting. The key consideration is that you find a venue where you can hold this class that can actually give them room to provide different samples, and have a place where everyone there can properly hear the wine expert talking about the different kinds of wines.

Once you have the venue established and you've arranged your JV, you and your JV partner should begin promoting this seminar in the last week of November. Keep this a small group of 10 or 15 at most. It is only natural that a wine tasting should be a little more intimate than a larger client event./ That also makes it easier to fill, and builds some exclusivity into your event.

Two weeks before the seminar, send an email blast or a direct mail campaign to the people on your database, and ask your JV partner to do the same. Don't hesitate to send this to both men and women, as the women will encourage their husbands to attend.

The week before the seminar, encourage the local media to run advertisements to inform their readers of this seminar. When you are running the ad in the paper, your newspaper can provide stock photography that suits the ad. You will also want your JV Partner to post signs in their place of business to promote this event. The signs can be enlargements of the newspaper template we've provided.

On the day of the event, be sure to have a sign-up form for attendees.

Make sure you capture the names, addresses and email addresses of everyone who attends so you can use this information in other marketing efforts. Note: at the bottom of the form have a statement that indicates that you are collecting this information to use to inform the participants about further ideas involving food and wine, as well as receiving future promotions from you and your JV partner's companies.

After the seminar, take the time to send a thank you to your clients who brought friends and neighbors to the event. Make sure that you let them know you appreciate them for doing this for you. When you express that gratitude, they will know it is coming from your heart, and they will go out of their way to do more for you in the future.

And finally, make sure that you set up a communication flow with the new people who came to this seminar.

Email for champagne and Wine Tasting

Subject: Why care if Beaujolais goes with Crème Brule? You ever wondered why wine connoisseurs are like that?

Why they constantly sound like they are trying to impress you with the wines being paired with your foods?

Because it's FUN... that's why!

Seriously, I learned how to properly taste and pair champagne and wines not long ago and have loved every minute of it.

Finding that perfect red wine for a nice barbeque dinner... ..or the ideal white for Halibut ...or the perfect champagne for a New Years party.

It is a fun skill to know – and your friends and family will definitely like the end result of your new ‘skill’.

Which is one of the reason I have partnered up with <name of jv parter> for my VIP Vino Party on <date>.

Come on out and join us, please.

We can have xx people out for the nighttime festivities. You will get first-hand advice from a champagne and wine tasting and pairing expert. You will meet some new friends. And you get to learn a new skill that stays with you for life. Trust me – the ability to match Beaujolais with Crème Brule is a skill that you will enjoy. It opens up new options for your weekend entertaining, and it sure is fun along the way. If you want to join us <date>, please RSVP with your name, and one guests name as soon as possible.

Hope to see you there! <name>

PS: Think about the fun little things you can do at parties and special dinners. Knowing the perfect wine for the perfect meal makes you very popular at parties – just and see. Let me know as soon as you can if you want to attend as I am only allowed to bring xx people. Thanks.

Subject: Are you seeing this with your <Niche>?

Dear <name>

We have had a lot of people asking us for advice on serving the <niche> marketplace while the markets continue their volatility.

Great question. Things have changed... and we are here to help you make the most of it.

As a member of the <Coaching Group>, we want you to be the first to attend our new and improved live training sessions.

<Date>, we want you to join us in <city> for an informative training session on serving the <Niche>

How big is the <Niche> for you?

□ [BULLETS]

Do you SEE the opportunity for you here?

Good.

Despite all the proof.... LESS than 5% of professionals invest any time or money understanding this demographic.

But there's a BIG problem that must first be addressed. Most <NICHE> are highly reluctant to trust professionals in a sales or service capacity.

Their experience has shown them the lack of interest from professionals in actual understanding of their wants and needs.

This is exactly why we originally created <Coaching> training, and is the same reason we are hosting this live event in <Date>.

Some of what you will learn at the event:

□ [Benefits and Bullets] There is no charge for this event, as an added-value service from <Group>, we are proud to give you advanced tools for growing your practice in <year> and beyond.

All you need to do is sign up by calling [NAME at PHONE] right now, and we can get your seat reserved immediately.

An Investment in Your Success...

I cannot promise you that success will be instantly yours once you take this program. But I can guarantee that you will discover simple ways you can build a stronger sense of trust among those in the <niche> market. From there, you can guess what could happen next.

Sincerely yours, <CONTACT DETAILS>

P.S. It is very important for you to understand the recent changes in the way <Niche> want to deal with you and your industry. This past recession DID change the buying mindset, and they want different things from you than they used to. Join us at our free event to get this timely information so your practice can continue to grow and thrive in the coming months and years.

Dear <name>

What happens when you pull this frog back 6 inches?

It takes a giant leap forward.

But if you pull it too far back, it snaps and is useless.

This past recession hit most businesses hard. Some of them could not bounce back.

But some continue to grow, even thrive in this new buyers market.

Have you noticed the changes in your clients?

They want new things. They are buying differently. They are much more skeptical.

Which is where we can help.

Things have changed... and we are here to help you make the most of it.

JOINT VENTURE LETTER FORMULA

Example #1....Joint Venture Solicitation Letter Dear <<first name>>,

Here's how you can add an extra $xxxx in profit to your bottom line without lifting a finger or investing a cent.

I have a profitable proposition for you – one that could be repeated time and time again. My name is _____ and I'm a director of _____. I specialize in _____.

I am presently setting up joint-venture projects that let you gain the maximum profits possible from your customer list.

Especially since most of your customers are small to medium size business owners – the ideal customer profile for this type of project. Remember, this is extra income above and beyond what you are already making each month.

Here's how it works....

I have tested specific letters directed at business owners. Mailing to our own list of customers has generated a response of up to x%. What I am proposing, is testing these proven offers to your list of customers. If they are as profitable as I expect, you'll be making extra profits and your customers will be getting profit enhancing information worth many times what they pay for it.

Here's how our joint venture would work, and the benefits you'll get...

I'll supply you with a sample endorsement letter to put on your letterhead and stationery. This is the letter that will introduce our products and my company to your subscribers.

In exchange for your endorsement, you'll receive xx% of the profits. I'll pay for all the costs of production, mailing, postage and fulfillment of the orders. This means you have no-risk whatever in this project.

© Troy White

Endorsed offers like the one I am proposing usually produce similar results.

All orders can be taken by you for total accountability or I can take them through my office and give you full auditing rights. We track the source of every order we get in our office. We will pay you your share at the end of each month. It's in our interest to do this, since once you see how lucrative this is, you'll want to do other joint ventures with us.

That's an overview of how it would work. Basically, I'll pay all the costs, do all the work, and make sure the project happens as it's supposed to. All you have to do is approve the copy, and send me a sampling of your list of customers together with your letterheads.

I would like to test 600 names mailed first class. This will allow us to see quickly what sort of results we can expect from the rest of your list. Once we've verified the results we can proceed with mailing the rest of your list and banking the money.

To get the ball rolling on this, please call me on xxx.xxx.xxxx I hope you are as keen to test this project as I am. I think it's a winner for all three of us. You, your customers and myself. Regards,

name Director, company

Headline Formulas To Use

(email subject lines – facebook updates – twitter updates)

===== <<<< === >>>> =====

Headlines are what makes your marketing work... or bomb. It really is that straightforward. IF you have a bad headline, your ad won't work or your site won't keep visitors. If you have no headline, welcome to the club! Few companies or professionals have or use headlines. To most, the company name is a headline. Wrong.

Your customers don't really care what your company name is.

They care about what you can do to help them. And your company name doesn't help them at all.

Nor does cutesy sayings. Here is a list of some of the best headlines ever written. These headlines got people to read. They made the owners a bundle. And they are easily modified to suite your business. Think of each of these like a template.

For example:

The headline here made millions for its owner: They Laughed When I Sat Down At The Piano - But When I Started to Play!

Which could be modified to:

They Snickered When I Left My Corporate Job To Be an Advisor - But When I Became Wealthy With My Own Advice!

They Laughed When I Wrote My First Book - But When It Hit The Best Seller Shelves!

So here is the template for you to play with...

They Laughed When I _____ - But When I _____! Simple – right? These formulas work, but you have to try a bunch of variations.

Headline writers will often create 20, 30 – even 50 variations of a headline before hitting on the one that wins.

Your best bet?

Go through these 2 lists and write out at least 20 or 30 variations.

You can use them as headlines – as Facebook updates - as Tweets – as email subject lines.

They are powerful and you want to keep them in a secure place.

Remember: One good headline can keep leads and new business flowing to you for many years to come. So it is a good idea to invest a few hours with pen and paper writing headlines.

Next... Cosmopolitan Headlines.

Don't laugh.

Actually, take them quite seriously.

They are some of the best headline formulas ever written.

And the people that write them get paid a fortune to do so.

Why? Because one GREAT headline can sell millions of copies of their magazine.

So pay attention to the formula behind the headline – not the actual Cosmo references.

AGGRESSIVE MARKETING IMPROVES CASH FLOW.

Being timid or easily offended by snide comments by friends, family, or industry counterparts will get you NO WHERE.

But learning more about being and thinking like a marketer WILL GET YOU ANYTHING YOU WANT.

It's all about getting stuff done and in front of your clients and prospective clients consistently.

Multiple medias combined works best.

You will get everyone under the sun instantly becoming a marketing expert when you show them these letters, emails, or pieces in this kit.

Yet I would be willing to bet they have NEVER ran a successful marketing campaign in their life... consistently.

I have.

And this 'hokey' approach works in every market you could possibly imagine.

I'll prove it to you over the coming year as we go through the 12 months of teleseminar coaching calls.

BUT, I can give you the tools, the education, the live coaching... ..and it's ABSOLUTELY USELESS if you do nothing with it! YOU have to implement it. Do one thing at a time.

Leverage the calendar and plan it out. Hire help if you need. JUST GET IT OUT THE DOOR. Your cash flow will quickly grow.

Your client relationships will improve. And your business will thrive. But ONLY if you take action... MASSIVE ACTION.

I'm here to help... but you need to get your ego and opinions out of the way until you've TESTED this approach.

It works.

I have helped my clients make many millions of dollars using this type of marketing.

It's your turn.

Good luck and I look forward to talking you on the coaching calls.
